PART IV.

Bills of the Bengal Council.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

A Bill to provide for the sanitation of Emigrants during their passage through Bengal to the labour-districts in Assam.

ARRANGEMENT OF SECTIONS.

SECTION.

1. Short title, extent and commencement of Act.

2. Definitions of—
   "Agent."
   "Dependent."
   "Emigrant."
   "Emigrate."
   "Labour-districts."

3. Power to make rules for protection in Bengal of the health of emigrants on their way to Assam.

The following Bill with the Statement of Objects and Reasons, is, by order of the President, published for general information :—

A Bill to provide for the sanitation of Emigrants during their passage through Bengal to the labour districts in Assam.

WHEREAS it is provided in section seven of the Inland Emigration Act, 1882, that, subject to the provisions of section five of that Act, nothing in the Act is to be deemed to prohibit any native of India from emigrating to any of the labour districts otherwise than under the provisions of the Act;

Preamble.

And whereas natives of India emigrate in large numbers to the labour-districts otherwise than under those provisions ;

And whereas in the territories administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal great sickness and mortality have occurred among such emigrants on their way to the labour-districts ;

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. This Act may be called the "Inland Emigrants' Health Act, 1889" ;

Short title, extent and commencement of Act.

(2) It extends to the whole of the territories administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, and

(3) It shall come into force on the day on which it is published in the Calcutta Gazette with the assent of the Governor-General.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

Definitions.

"Agent" means a person who engages or assists a native of India to emigrate otherwise than under the provisions of the Inland Emigration Act, 1882.

"Agent."

"Dependent" means any woman (not being herself an emigrant), child, or aged or incapacitated relative or friend, accompanying an emigrant with the consent of the agent.

"Dependent"

"Emigrant" means a native of India engaged or assisted by an agent so to emigrate.

"Emigrant."

"Emigrate" denotes the departure of any native of India of the age of sixteen years or upwards (other than a native of any of the labour-districts) from any part of India for the purpose of labouring for hire in any of the labour-districts otherwise than as a domestic servant.

"Emigrate."

"Labour-districts" means the districts of Lakhimpur, Sibságar, Nowgong, Darrang, Kámrúp, Goálpára, Khási Hills, Cachar and Sylhet in the Chief Commissionership of Assam.

"Labour-districts."

3. The Local Government may from time to time make rules with respect to any of the following matters, namely—

Power to make rules for protection in Bengal of the health of emigrants on their way to Assam.

(a) the routes by which emigrants and their dependents are to travel on their way to any of the labour-districts ;

(b) the depôts and rest-houses to be provided by, and at the cost of, agents for the accommodation of emigrants and their dependents on or off such routes, and the sanitation and superintendence of such depôts and rest-houses ;

(c) the mode, and the numerical strength of the parties, in which emigrants and their dependents are to travel, the arrangements to be made by, and at the cost of, agents for facilitating their journey, the length of their daily marches by road, and the provision to be made by, and at the cost of, agents for the carriage of women and dependents and of emigrants suffering from sickness ;

(d) the food to be supplied to emigrants and their dependents by, and at the cost of, agents, and the provision to be made by, and at the cost of, agents for the proper cooking of such food ;

(e) the water-supply to be maintained by, or at the cost of, agents for the use of emigrants and their dependents

(f) the clothing to be supplied to emigrants and their dependents by, and at the cost of, agents ;

(g) the hospital accommodation, medical treatment and maintenance to be provided by, or at the cost of, agents for emigrants or their dependents suffering from sickness on their way to any of the labour districts, and the arrangements to be so made, and maintenance so provided, for any emigrant and his dependents where either he or any of them is so suffering ;

(h) the disposal of dead bodies of emigrants and their dependents at the cost of agents ;

(i) the powers of entry and inspection which may be exercised for the purposes of any rule under this clause, and the authorities by whom those powers may be exercised ;

(j) the mode of compelling agents to discharge their liabilities under any rule under this clause ; and,

(k) generally, the giving effect to the purposes of this Act.

(2) In making any rule under this section, the Local Government may direct that a breach of it shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, and, when the breach is a continuing breach, with a further fine which may extend to fifty rupees for every day after the first during which the breach continues.

(3) If a rule under this section authorises an officer of the Government to expend any public money in the event of default on the part of an agent to comply with any rule under that section, the money, together with simple interest thereon at the rate of six per cent. yearly, shall be recoverable from the agent under the provisions of the Public Demands Recovery Act, 1880.

(4) Nothing in the last foregoing clause shall be construed to bar a prosecution for any breach of a rule where the breach thereof has been made punishable in pursuance of the power conferred by clause (2) of this section.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE Inland Emigration Act of 1882, following in this respect the tenour of the law previously in force, makes ample provision for the sanitary arrangements connected with "labourers" on their way to Assam; but little benefit results, because the definition of "labourer" given in the Act is so restricted that it does not, under existing circumstances, apply to the majority of the emigrants during their journey through Bengal. The term is limited to persons who have executed labour contracts—a proceeding now very generally deferred until the emigrants have arrived at their destination, or at least until they have passed beyond the confines of Bengal. The expediency of permitting contracts under the Act to be postponed to so late a stage is under consideration, but meanwhile it is urgently necessary to provide for the sanitary supervision of emigrants on their journey, and particularly for the inspection of the lodging-houses and depôts in which they are detained. This has been done in the present Bill by giving to the Lieutenant-Governor power to make rules for the sanitary protection of all emigrants, similar to those which he exercises under Act I of 1882 in regard to "labourers."

Application for survey.

1. Every application for the survey of a steam-ship shall be made between the hours of 10 A.M. and 5 P.M. on any day, except Sundays and Government holidays, on a printed sheet in the form No. 1 hereto annexed, which will be supplied for this purpose at the Surveyor's office, to the Chief Surveyor at the port at which the survey is to be held, and should be made at least three clear days before the day on which it is desired that the survey shall take place.

2. Upon receipt of an application in the prescribed form, duly filled in, the Surveyor will fix the date and hour at which the survey shall be commenced, and will forward to the applicant information of the date and hour so fixed, together with a list of the requisite preparations for the survey of the steam-ship. The said information and list shall be in the form No. 2 hereto annexed.

Time of survey.

3. Upon due notice or application from the owner or master, surveys shall be made by the Surveyor or Surveyors appointed under the Act on any day in the year, with the exception of Sundays and Government holidays. If circumstances admit, surveys may be made on holidays.

Surveyors' duties.

4. In cases where two Surveyors make the survey, the Engineer-Surveyor will survey the engines, boilers, and all the machinery required to be surveyed under the Act; the Shipwright-Surveyor will inspect the hull, equipments and passenger accommodation, measure and determine the number of passengers the vessel is fit to carry, and see that the certificates of the master, mates and engineers or engine-driver are such as is required by the Act; also that the lights and fog-signals are in accordance with the regulations for the prevention of collisions at sea.

5. The Surveyors' declarations and the certificates of survey shall be made and issued in the forms hereunto annexed and numbered 3 and 4 respectively.

6. Every declaration shall be sent, in accordance with section 12 of the Act, by the owner or master, to whom it is given, to the officer appointed under section 12, clause (1) of the Act.

7. The notice to be given under section 13, sub-section (3) of the Act, to the owner or master when a certificate is ready for delivery shall be given, under the signature of the officer authorized to deliver certificates of survey, in the form No. 5 hereto annexed.

8. If every part of the steam-ship is not ready for survey at the time so appointed, or if the requisite preparations have not been made in accordance with the list forwarded to the applicant under rule 2, the Surveyor may fix some other convenient time for the survey.

9. If the Surveyor is unavoidably prevented from being present at the time fixed, the earliest possible information shall be sent to the applicant, and some other time, convenient to the applicant and to the Surveyor, shall be fixed for the survey.

10. With a view to obviate inconvenience and delay, owners and masters whose vessels are in dock or undergoing repairs should communicate at once with the Surveyors, if their vessels have afterwards to be surveyed.

11. If a Surveyor finds that any defect exists in the hull, machinery or equipments of a steam-ship, he shall, before refusing to give a declaration regarding the ship under section 11 of the Act, address a letter in the form No. 6 hereto annexed to the owner or master of the steam-ship, pointing out such defect and the repairs, &c., necessary to make good the same, and to enable him to grant a declaration.

NOTICE.

The 25th March 1889.—The following draft of rules which it is proposed to issue under section 21 of Act VI of 1884 (the Inland Steam-Vessels Act) in supersession of those made under that section and published in the appendix to the Calcutta Gazette of the 25th January 1888, is published for general information. These rules will be taken into consideration on the expiry of a month from the date of their first publication in the Calcutta Gazette, and the Lieutenant-Governor will receive and give due attention to any objections or suggestions which may be made by any person within that period.

C. W. I. HARRISON, Lieut.-Col, R.E.,
Offg. Joint-Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal, P. W. Dept.

Application for survey.

1. Every application for the survey of an Inland steam-vessel shall be made between the hours of 10 A.M. and 5 P.M. on any day, except Sundays and Government holidays, on a printed sheet in the Form No. 1 hereto annexed, which will be supplied for this purpose at the Surveyor's office, to the Surveyor at the nearest place of survey and should be made at least three clear days before the day on which it is desired that the survey shall take place.

2. Upon receipt of an application in the prescribed form, duly filled in, the Surveyor will fix the date and hour at which the survey shall be commenced, and will forward to the applicant information of the date and hour so fixed, together with a list of the requisite preparations for the survey of the steam-vessel. The said information and list shall be in the Form No. 2 hereto annexed.

Time and place of survey.

3. Upon due notice or application from the owner or master, surveys shall be made by the Surveyor or Surveyors appointed under the Act on any day in the year, with the exception of Sundays and Government holidays, at Calcutta, Chittagong, Patna, Cuttack, Goalundo, Kooshtea, Dehree, Knoolna, Sahebgunge, Naraingunge and at such other places as may, from time to time, be declared by the Local Government to be places of survey. If circumstances admit, surveys may be made on holidays.

Surveyors' duties.

4. In cases where two Surveyors are employed, the Engineer-Surveyor will survey the engines, boilers, and all the machinery required to be surveyed under the Act; the Shipwright-Surveyor will inspect the hull, equipments, and passenger accommodation, measure and determine the number of passengers the vessel is fit to carry, and see that the certificates of the master and engineer or engine-driver are such as are required by the Act; also that the lights and fog-signals are in accordance with the regulations for the prevention of collisions at sea.

5. The Surveyors' declarations and the certificate of survey shall be made and issued in the forms hereunto annexed, and numbered 3 and 4 respectively.

6. Every declaration shall be sent, in accordance with section 10 of the Act, by the owner or master to whom it is given, to the officer appointed under section 10, clause (1) of the Act.

7. The notice to be given under section 11, sub-section (3) of the Act, to the owner or master when a certificate is ready for delivery, shall be given, under the signature of the officer authorised to deliver certificates of survey, in the Form No. 5 hereto annexed.

8. If every part of the steam-vessel is not ready for survey at the time so appointed, or if the requisite preparations have not been made in accordance with the list forwarded to the applicant under Rule 2, the Surveyor may fix some other convenient time for the survey.

9. If the Surveyor is unavoidably prevented from being present at the time fixed, the earliest possible information shall be sent to the applicant, and some other time, convenient to the applicant and to the Surveyor, shall be fixed for the survey.

10. With a view to obviate inconvenience and delay, owners and masters whose vessels are in dock or undergoing repairs should communicate at once with the Surveyors, if their vessels have afterwards to be surveyed.

11. If a Surveyor finds that any defect exists in the hull, machinery or equipments of a steam-vessel, he shall, before refusing to give a declaration regarding the vessel under section 9 of the Act, address a letter in the Form No. 6 hereto annexed to the owner or master of the steam-vessel, pointing out such defect and the repairs, &c., necessary to make good the same, and to enable him to grant a declaration.

12. A fee at the following rates shall be payable for certificates of survey :—

							Rs.

(a) the minimum fee shall be one-fourth of the annual fee;

(b) in the case of a new Inland steam-vessel coming under survey for the first time, the full annual fee shall be payable, whatever be the nature of the certificate.

13. On Sundays, Good Friday, and Christmas Day Rs. 20 per hour will be charged in addition to the fees ordinarily chargeable. Time spent in travelling is not to be included in the charge allowed for holidays.

Irrigation.

THE following notes on crop experiments made upon lands irrigated from the Sone Canals are published for general information.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

C. W. I. HARRISON, Lt.-Colonel, R.E.,
Offg. Joint-Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal,
P. W. Dept.

No. 514, dated Arrah, the 7th February 1889.

From—C. W. ODLING, ESQ., Superintending Engineer, Sone Circle,
To—The Chief Engineer, Bengal, Irrigation Branch.

I HAVE the honor to submit, for your information, the papers marginally noted, containing the result of the crop experiments carried out in the Sone Circle during the kharif season 1888-89. Mr. Luson, C.S., on special duty, at my request, undertook the task of tabulating and commenting on the whole of the experiments. His note thereon is of so much public interest that I beg to suggest that it shall be published in the Calcutta Gazette for general information.

Enclosures.

Note by Mr. H Luson, C.S., dated 4th February 1889.

Executive Engineer Arrah Division's memorandum No. 174 of the 17th January 1889, and enclosures.
Executive Engineer Arrah Division's memorandum No. 217 of the 19th January 1889, and enclosures.

2. There has been much discussion as to the yield of crops on lands irrigated by the canals, but with the exceptoin of the experiments taken yearly by canal officers, which are annually noticed in the Revenue Report, there are few facts to go on.

3. The experiments commented on in the note were taken, (I) by Mr. Luson himself, (II) by Messrs. Burrows, Thomson and Mylne, who with great public spirit undertook the duty at my request, and (III) by canal officers and subordinates. Experiments classes (I) and (II) are separately detailed in the note, whilst those under class (III) have been grouped together.

4. The accuracy of the experiments carried out by canal officers having been somewhat questioned last year before the Irrigation Committee, they were this year carried out with the utmost publicity in the presence of civil officers, zemindars and others who could be induced to attend. The names of the persons present at each experiment are noted in the reports Appendix (II), and you will on inspection see that representatives of all classes interested in agriculture were present, and that the experiments were generally largely attended.

Note by HEWLING LUSON, ESQ., C.S., on special duty in the Public Works Department, upon crop experiments on canal-irrigated dhan taken in the Sone Circle during the kharif season of 1888-89,—dated Arrah, the 4th February 1889.

THIS report incorporates, at the Superintending Engineer's request, the figures supplied by Messrs. Burrows, Thomson, and Mylne of Beehea, and by the Executive Engineers in charge of the three Divisions of the Circle, with the results of my own experiments.

2. The returns given by the Canal Sub-divisional Officers have been separated from those given by their subordinates, and in the following tables the figures obtained by (a) Messrs. Burrows, Thomson and Mylne, (b) the Canal Sub-divisional Officers, (c) the Canal subordinates, and (d) by myself, are compared side by side.

3. All the weighments made by Messrs. Burrows, Thomson, and Mylne and myself were made after the grain and straw had been thoroughly dried In my experiments the crop, directly it was cut, was sewn up in stout cloth and sent to head-quarters; it was not weighed till after exposure to the sun for 15 days on the average. With the exception of 15 experiments made by Mr. Maconchy, Executive Engineer, and Messrs. White and Clowes, Assistant Engineers, all the figures supplied by the Canal Officers represent weighments of crops made at once upon the fields, as was directed in paragraph 1 of the Superintending Engineer's instructions of the 25th October last. Though weighing on the field was evidently meant to secure publicity, yet it seems to me that accuracy has to some extent been sacrificed. Rice is always cut before it is quite ripe, and is then laid upon the ground to dry for several days, after which it is tied up in bundles and taken to the threshing-floors. There is a saying current in these districts, दुधी धान बुद रबी (dudhi dhan buddha rabi), i.e. "you must cut rice when the grains are still milky, but rabi crops you may gather when they are old" and I have noticed that, if rice is allowed to get quite ripe before cutting, the corn drops out very easily. In order, therefore, to secure all the grain, experiments should be made on crops which are damp.

4. Seventeen experiments were made by Messrs Maconchy and White, a subordinate, and myself, upon the shrinkage of dhan in drying. The average of these experiments gives about 8·33 per cent. Twenty-one experiments were made by me upon the shrinkage of straw, and they averaged nearly 33·33 per cent Tables showing the calculations of these averages will be found in Appendix No 1.

5. The co-efficient of shrinkage is not constant; it depends upon the kind of rice and when it was last watered. Some crops are irrigated till within a few days of cutting for the sake of the second crop sown with the dhan It would also make a material difference whether the experiment was made in the morning or afternoon, as the dew at night is heavy. The variations in the weight of the straw from shrinkage are obviously liable to be greater than those of the grain. In order, however, to compare the various results, I have reduced the figures of all the wet weighments according to the co-efficients given in the last paragraph. The actual figures sent in will be found in Appendix No. 2.

6. Transplanted aghani dhan irrigated throughout the season with canal water.—The following table represents the results of 222 experiments upon first-class crops only. None of the figures are supposed to represent average crops; they are intended to show the maximum obtainable under canal irrigation.

The results are given in maunds and seers per acre. Dhan means unhusked rice.

All figures marked* represent not actual weighments, but weighments reduced by the co-efficients given in paragraph 4.

The results obtained from the different sources are nearly identical. The figures of Messrs. Burrows, Thomson and Mylne are slightly lower than the rest because a certain amount of wastage occurred from the method they adopted of drying the crop. They had it tied up in bundles and carried to head-quarters, so that some grain must have fallen out on the way. The wastage, however, would not be much greater than occurs usually when the cultivators carry the bundles from the fields. In my experiments there was absolutely no wastage, because as soon as it was cut the crop was sewn up in bags which were afterwards opened only in my presence. Similarly in weighing wet crops upon the ground the Canal Officers would not make any waste.

The figures of the Sub-divisional Officers are higher than the rest evidently because, taking a very small number of experiments each, they were mostly able to choose the very best crops. My own experiments were made at different places throughout the whole circle in the three districts, Shahabad, Gya, and Patna; and as all the aghani rice in the country is cut within a few days I had little time to choose specially fine crops.

The general average of the subordinates is somewhat lower than it should have been because in the Buxar and Eastern Sone Divisions sufficient care was not taken to experiment upon first class crops only. The Sub-divisional Officer of Sikraol remarks that in some case the best crops were allowed to be cut before the experiments were started, and in others the Sub-Overseers cut the rice nearest their bungalows to save the trouble of going a little distance for better. Similarly the returns of the Daodnagar sub-division have been reduced because in several cases the experiments were put off till the 25th of December, 12 days after I had seen that most of the crop had been cut. The subordinates of the Arrah Division have been better supervised and their figures are good, but it seems to me that in future no officer below the rank of a Sub-divisional Officer should take crop experiments. Six experiments carefully made by each Sub-divisional Officer would be of more value than any number made by subordinates who do not appreciate the value of scientific accuracy.

The variations in individual experiments (my best being 44 maunds 8 seers of dhan an acre and my worst 20 maunds 32 seers) are due to the differences of kinds of rice and kinds of soil, and I think also in some cases to want of experience in picking out the crop likely to give the largest outturn.

The crops in all these experiments are stated to have been regularly irrigated with canal water. Accordingly, as the rains failed after 9th September, they owe their existence entirely to the canals.

7. Kartika dhan.—The following table shows the results per acre of the 31 experiments made upon Kartika or early rice regularly irrigated by canal water. Figures marked * have been reduced on account of the crops having been weighed damp—

Kartika rice is not grown to any very large extent in the irrigated area, small patches being sown usually in each village for the early production of straw and dhan; hence apparently only three experiments were taken by representatives of the Canal Department.

The experiment of the subordinate of the Agiaon sub-division probably does not represent the best crop of the neighbourhood, but the most convenient to cut.

8. Broadcast dhan.—Eight experiments were made upon rice sown broadcast and irrigated regularly from the canals. Kartika and aghani are not separated in the following table. Figures marked* have been reduced on account of the crops having been weighed wet:—

Dhan is very seldom sown broadcast in areas in lease for canal water. Under the ahra system of irrigation considerable quantities of broadcast are sown inside the ahras on the tal, but the higher form of cultivation prevails under the canal system, as a regular supply of water can be depended upon, and I found a difficulty in obtaining good fields for experiment. Broadcast rice is very coarse and less valuable than the kinds transplanted. It loses more considerably in weight on drying.

9. Aghani dhan irrigated after 15th October.—As requested, specimens of the best rice that did not receive canal water till after 15th October, and had not before been irrigated from an ahra, are given. These experiments were made, some on transplanted and some on broadcast dhan—

* Weighed wet; figures reduced by co-efficients given in paragraph 4.

I am inclined to doubt the accuracy of some of the results given by the Monoharpur subordinates; it is not improbable that crops which had been previously irrigated from an ahra, which afterwards dried up, have been taken. From what I saw of the aghani dhan that depended upon rain alone, and received no water from ahra or canal till the 15th October, I think that the produce of scarcely any field exceeded 10 maunds an acre.

No rain fell after 9th September till the time of harvest, so that the above figures (though not so trustworthy as they might be) tend to show this result—that the best crops, not artificially watered last season, were reduced by five weeks' want of water to less than one-third of what they would have been if irrigated throughout.

10. Dhan irrigated from ahras only.—One experiment was taken by Mr. White, Assistant Engineer, Sub-divisional Officer of Daodnagar, upon rice irrigated from an ahra, and 18 such by subordinates. I took none, as my instructions stated that they were not required. The following is an analysis of the figures:—

The figures of the subordinates are of little value, as, although they may represent the best ahra-irrigated rice that could be conveniently found by them, except in the case of large ahras almost all the rice not watered by the canals was very insufficiently irrigated or died. These figures do not represent the results that can be produced by a plentiful supply of ahra water. I saw rice irrigated from ahras in one or two places at least as good as the best canal-irrigated rice, but in a year like the last, it is extremely difficult to make a comparison of the best crops under both systems, because in scarcely any villages near the canals was a plentiful supply of ahra water kept up throughout the season.

If comparisons are to be made between crops irrigated by the two kinds of water, the experiments should certainly be conducted by officers of the proper experience and qualifications. Similar kinds of rice grown on similar lands under exactly similar conditions need to be selected with very great judgment, if indeed the exact similarity of all the conditions can ever be established in any case.

11. Soils.—The chief soils of the area commanded by the canals are sand, clay, and loam, and mixtures of two or all three of these in various proportions. There are distinctive names for the ordinary combinations which every cultivator knows, but there are other names returned with the results of the various experiments which in different parts cover widely different proportions. Those concerning which there is doubt as to their composition I have not introduced into the following tables. The more common forms about which there can be little chance of error are the following :—

Sandy soils.

Bal ... ... } Chiefly sand.
Benga ... ...
Balwat ... ... } Sand and loam, but more sand.
Balmat ... ...
Balsunder ...
Dhus ... ... Clay and sand, sand predominating.

Garmat ... ... } Clay and loam, but more clay.
Garwat ... ...

These names appear against 79 of the experiments upon regularly irrigated aghani dhan taken by Messrs. Burrows, Thomson and Mylne, the Sub-divisional Officers, and myself, and against 95 similar experiments reported by the canal subordinates. As in nearly all the former 79 the crops were weighed dry and are more trustworthy, I give the results separately from the latter 95 as follows :—

* All these figures have been reduced by the co-efficients given in paragraph 4 on account of the experiments having been made on wet crops.

From these tables it is clear that sandy soils are decidedly somewhat better for the cultivation of dhan than clayey soils: they would seem also to be better than loamy soils. These results are in accordance with the general opinion throughout these districts. They prove also that very good dhan can be grown upon clayey soils.

As the best crops have been selected for experiment, I have no doubt that the best lands only of each class grew them.

12. Number of years canal water used upon the lands experimented upon.—The remarks in this paragraph refer only to transplanted aghani dhan. Of the 25 experiments made by me, in 21 the fields were situated in long-leased areas. Messrs. Burrows, Thomson and Mylne do not state how long canal water had been used on the lands they experimented upon, but I know that nearly the whole of their zemindari in which canal water is taken is under long lease. Twenty-nine out of the 33 experiments by Sub-divisional Officers were made in long leased areas, and in 129 cases out of the 138 reported by the subordinates canal water had been taken on long lease.

In 23 out of my 25 cases canal water had been continuously taken for nine years or more. Of the remaining two, in one canal water had been used for three years, and in the other never before. The results of these two are slightly below the average of the 25.

The Sub-divisional Officers have noted the numbers of years of continual irrigation in 25 of their experiments. In six the lands had received canal water for 12 years, in one for 11 years, in two for 10 years, in one for 9 years, in one for 8 years, in five for 7 years, in six for 6 years, in one for 5 years, in two for 4 years, and in nine for less.

The subordinates have noted the periods of regular irrigation in 120 cases as follows:—Two for 14 years, fourteen for 12 years, three for 11 years, seventeen for 10 years, twenty-seven for 9 years, twelve for 8 years, thirteen for 7 years, seven for 6 years, thirteen for 5 years, three for 4 years, seven for 3 years, and two never before irrigated.

In fact the experiments upon transplanted aghani dhan have been taken generally upon lands continuously irrigated by canal water for a number of years, and it is therefore impossible from the returns to compare the results of the continued use of canal water with those for lands to which it has not before been applied.

13. Various kinds of dhan.—Innumerable varieties of dhan are grown in South Behar. A common saying runs राजपूत-को-धान-के-कोर-नाहिं-है (Rajput o dhan ke or nahin hai), "there is no limit to the classes of Rajputs or the kinds of dhan." Of the 197 experiments upon canal irrigated transplanted aghani dhan before me, against which the names are recorded the following is an analysis:—

Name of rice (aghani).	Number of experiments.	Name of rice (aghani).	Number of experiments.

14. Rents.—The rents of the fields experimented upon have been usually recorded except by Messrs. Burrows, Thomson and Mylne, who were not requested to do so.

The following figures represent the nagdi rates of rent per acre paid for the lands on which regularly irrigated aghani dhan was grown.

Of the 25 experiments made by myself upon this crop, in 20 nagdi rents were paid, and their average is Rs. 3-10½ a bigha, or Rs. 5-13⅗ an acre. The table below shows the rents in these 20 cases compared with the outturn. The figures represent the rent, exclusive of road cess, public work cess, neg, &c.—

20	3 3⅕	35	24	36	32	8

The mark* means that khesari or some second crop was sown with the dhan.

It will be noticed that the rent does not correspond with the outturn. Indeed, throughout the whole circle rents do not vary exactly with the fertility of the soil or the outturn. As a rule Guzashtadars and Brahmin and Rajput ryots pay less than the lower classes. Some landlords are less grasping or know their interests less than others.

The Sub-divisional Officers recorded figures for rent in 31 cases; but, except Mr. White, none state whether cesses are included. As sometimes the rent paid is inclusive of these and sometimes exclusive, the returns are not quite so accurate as mine. Nevertheless, the average is almost the same—Rs. 3-11$\frac{35}{51}$ a bigha, or Rs. 5-15$\frac{91}{155}$ an acre.

The subordinates recorded rents in 96 experiments. They too omit to note whether cesses are included ; thus—

		Number of experiments.	Average rent per acre.

Ramnagar	ditto	6	4 $9\frac{3}{5}$
	Total ..	96	5 $10\frac{7}{96}$

The total average, Rs. 5-$10\frac{7}{96}$ an acre, or Rs. 3-$8\frac{31}{96}$ a bigha, is almost the same as the results obtained by the Sub-divisonal Officers and myself.

15. In conclusion, I beg to observe that all the calculations have been made and verified by myself. As some of the returns were by bighas and some by acres, and as almost all the figures of the Canal Officers and subordinates had to be reduced on account of the crops not having been dried, this has been a work of some considerable labour. I deemed the subject too important to trust it to clerks.

HEWLING LUSON.

	618	8	572	27
	572	27
Difference ...	45	21 = 7·33 per cent. nearly

The average of my own four experiments is 7·72 per cent., and in each case the dhan was conveyed short distances before being weighed. I have accordingly added one per cent. to the general average, and taken the shrinkage at 8·33 per cent. or $\frac{1}{12}$th.

Straw.—In 21 experiments I found the total weight of wet straw and dhan weighed together on the field decreased almost exactly 25 per cent on being perfectly dried. On the whole of my experiments, the proportion of dry dhan to dry straw is about as 7 : 10, and having, as found above, the shrinkage for dhan, we can calculate that for straw on 21 experiments thus—

If a = wet dhan, a^1 = dry dhan, b = wet straw, and b^1 = dry straw; then $\frac{a^1}{b^1} = \frac{7}{10}$; $\frac{a^1}{a} = \frac{11}{12}$ and $\frac{a^1 + b^1}{a + b} = \frac{3}{4}$; eliminating a^1 and a, $\frac{b^1}{b} = \frac{330}{496} = \frac{2}{3}$ almost exactly. Therefore the shrinkage for straw is 33·33 per cent., or $\frac{1}{3}$rd.

APPENDIX No. 2.

The actual figures submitted by the Executive Engineers.

No. 4980, dated Beheea, the 14th December 1888.

From—Messrs. Burrows, Thomson and Mylne,
To—The Superintending Engineer, Arrah.

We forward herewith the results of 52 crop experiments, which show a very satisfactory outturn of paddy from canal-irrigated lands.

Only the best crops were selected, and it should be remembered that the season was peculiarly favourable, inasmuch as there was no blight.

We can vouch for the correctness of the experiments.

From—Messrs. Burrows, Thomson and Mylne,
To—The Superintending Engineer, Sone Circle.

In reference to the enquiry contained in your No. 5059, dated 18th instant, we have to state that the grain and straw were weighed when dry.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

* Mean for six days.

Explanation.—Summary.—The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical average or means of the readings during the same period for the last ten years. The humidity of the atmosphere is expressed at percentage, saturated air being presented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 10. The number are the numerical means or average of the rainfall in that district determined from the returns sent in by the sub-divisional station for the period in question during the past 24 stations in the district sending in returns divided by the number of stations. A rainy day is one on which at least hundredth of an inch fell.

for the week ending Friday, the 29th of March 1889.

CALCUTTA the 2nd April 1889.

SUMMARY OF THE RAINFALL AND METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 29TH MARCH 1889.

At the close of the previous week weather conditions were slightly disturbed in South and East Bengal, and a few local storms had occurred on the 21st and 22nd in the south-east of the province. Owing to the gradual filling up of the depression that existed, weather conditions were improving, but a few local showers fell at the beginning of the present week in the neighbourhood of Calcutta and in East Bengal. Pressure then became very uniform, and though continuing to rise, the general distribution remained unaltered during the first half of the week. Temperature changes were generally irregular, a rapid increase taking place over small areas, while at others the temperature was very nearly normal. Strong south-westerly winds have continued blowing throughout the week at the head of the Bay. On Tuesday, the 26th, pressure fell, and a low-pressure area began to form in Northern India, partly extending over Bengal. On the following day it deepened considerably in North Behar and North Bengal, and a well-marked depression was formed, and the weather was very unsettled over the hills. The fall was very rapid over the whole of Bengal, and gradients became steep at the head of the Bay. Very little rain fell, however, in connection with the storm, the only report being ·1 inch at Darjeeling. Pressure rose with moderate rapidity on Thursday, and continued to rise slowly on Friday, when pressure became very nearly normal. During the latter half of the week conditions were slightly unsettled over the whole province, but beyond causing slight cloud, the fine weather was generally not interrupted.

Pressure.—Pressure rose at the beginning of the week and continued rising, while great uniformity everywhere prevailed during the first three days of the week. On Tuesday and Wednesday a fall occurred and a deep depression formed over the north of the province. The depression began to fill up on Thursday, and the rise continued slowly on Friday. Pressure was largely in excess on Monday, but in consequence of the rapid fall, it was from ·05 inch to ·1 inch in defect on Wednesday. After that pressure again rose and became very nearly normal by the end of the week. During the rapid fall of Wednesday, some stations reported a fall amounting to nearly a fifth of an inch. For the whole week, however, the mean pressure has been slightly in excess of the normal, the excess usually ranging up to about 0·05 inch.

Temperature.—Temperature changes have been generally irregular during the greater part of the week, and there has been considerable diversity in the reports from the different stations. At most of the stations a rather rapid rise has been going on throughout the week, and temperature has been always in excess of the normal. On Thursday the maximum temperature at Cuttack was 107·9° and at Midnapore 106·4°. The only general fall that took place during the week was on Friday, and then it in no case amounted to more than 3°. The mean temperature for the whole province has been about 2° in excess of the normal. The largest excess was in East and South-West Bengal, where it has amounted to over 2°. In all the other districts, except North Behar, the mean was over 2° in excess, and for North Behar about 1°.

The general distribution of temperature for the week and its variation from the normal are seen in the following table, where the average maximum, minimum and mean temperatures at nine typical stations in different districts of the province are given. It will be seen from these figures that temperature has been rather largely in excess both during the day and during the night :—

Rainfall.—Skies have been slightly clouded during the whole week, but rain has been almost entirely absent, the only showers reported being a few in East Bengal, and in the neighbourhood of Calcutta in the early part of the week. A fall of ·1 inch occurred at Darjeeling on the 27th, but no further fall was caused by the depression which existed in North Bengal on Wednesday. Rainfall for the week has been everywhere largely in defect. In fact the only districts which show an appreciable average rainfall are South-West and East Bengal, but even here the amounts do not average more than a few hundredths of an inch.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Friday, the 29th of March 1889:—

* A special census of the Europeans in the Darjiling Municipality was recently taken, as the census of this section of the community, taken in February 1881, was not reliable owing to the Europeans being at a minimum in that month. The number of the natives remains as before, as it was not necessary to re-census them. The ratios have consequently been calculated on the revised population under all heads in the above table, except "Age," the ratios under which have been omitted inasmuch as the census of the Europeans above alluded to cannot be considered as a basis of calculation owing to the results of the census under that head.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

SANITARY.

The 22nd March 1889.

NOTIFICATION.

The following translation of the special Regulations of the Ottoman Board of Health applicable to the Mecca pilgrimage of 1889, received through Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, is published for general information :—

Special Regulations applicable to the Mecca Pilgrimage of 1889.

Article 1.—From the beginning of the month of Redjeb until the end of the month of Zilhidjé (4th March to end of August), the Lazaretto of Camaran will be open to arrivals by sea subject to quarantine.

Article 2.—During the period of six months above-mentioned (Redjeb, Chaban, Rémazan, Chewal, Zilcadé, Zilhidjé) pilgrim ships arriving from outside the Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb, no matter what the tenor of their Bill of Health, must go direct to the Island of Camaran without touching at any other port of the Red Sea coasts.

Article 3.—Pilgrim ships are ships expressly chartered for the conveyance of pilgrims going to Mecca.

Article 4.—Vessels bound to the Red Sea having on board only one pilgrim for every 100 tons of registered tonnage are not included in the definition of pilgrim ships. Such vessels will be dealt with according to the character of their Bills of Health, conformably to the provisions of the General Regulation of 1867, applicable to cases of cholera.

Article 5.—Mail boats and vessels not carrying more than five pilgrims for every 100 tons register, can proceed to Abou-Saad, where they will discharge, subject to quarantine, their pilgrims and merchandise destined for the Hedjaz.

Merchandise not destined for Yemen can be landed at Hodeyda under the supervision of the Sanitary authorities.

Article 6.—For this purpose a Lazaretto is established at Abou-Saad as a branch of the Camaran Lazaretto, which will be open to arrivals specified in articles 4 and 5 of the present regulation throughout the year.

Article 7.—Arrivals from Egyptian ports, Sambouks, and other coasters, navigating from one port to another of the Red Sea coast, will also perform quarantine at Abou-Saad in case of necessity.

Article 8.—Indo-Malayan pilgrims who come to the Hedjaz vid Suez will be subjected to quarantine unless they can prove by their passports that they have come from beyond the Suez Canal.

Captains of ships are forbidden to embark pilgrims of this class under penalty of their ships and the crews being subjected to quarantine under Articles 2, 4, and 5 of these Regulations.

Article 9.—On the arrival of a pilgrim ship in Camaran Harbour, or Abou-Saad, all pilgrims will be disembarked and undergo the usual medical examination. If the health of the ship is good, and no suspicious case has occurred on the voyage, the ship and the pilgrims will undergo five full days' quarantine; baggage and effects will be disinfected, the ship will be washed and purified, but the cargo will not be landed nor purified nor taxed.

Article 10.—Pilgrim ships which arrive from infected ports, but have had no cholera case during the voyage or after arrival, will undergo a quarantine of ten days. Merchandise coming from a cholera-infected port will remain on board the ship, if there have been no cholera cases during the voyage or after arrival, but will be exempt from disinfection and from sanitary fees, except in the case of old personal effects and stuffs already used, unwashed wool, old cottons, hair and feathers, raw skins and hides and other raw animal remains and rags.

Article 11.—Ships upon which cases of cholera or suspicious cases have occurred during the voyage, or after arrival, will be subjected, ships and pilgrims, to a quarantine of at least 15 days. This quarantine will be renewed each time a cholera case occurs among crew or passengers after their arrival in Lazaretto, and will date from the day of the last case of sickness. In such cases the clauses in the Regulation of 1867 for cholera will be strictly applied.

Article 12.—No pilgrim ship shall leave Camaran for good without having re-shipped at the expiration of the quarantine all the pilgrims brought by her. Vessels which have completed their quarantine without cholera cases or suspected cases among the crew shall have a right to free pratique.

Article 13.—Sambouks coming from outside Cape Bab-el-Mandeb with pilgrims will be subject to the same rules as vessels specially chartered for pilgrims. They must go direct to Camaran, and will be refused admission at all other Arabian ports of the Red Sea.

Vessels coming from Bassora, with pilgrims on board bound for the Hedjaz, will have to go to Camaran, and will be treated according to the tenor of their Bill of Health and the general Regulations of 1867.

The same exceptional treatment is applicable to arrivals from Muscat, Zanzibar, and Bushire, provided such vessels are furnished with a regular Bill of Health indicating a good sanitary condition of the port of departure, and also if they have not touched at any intermediate port in the course of the voyage.

Read at the Board of Health and approved at the sitting of the 26th December 1888.

5. The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules to regulate the granting of pensions and gratuities out of the said Fund.

Local Government may make rules for granting pensions and gratuities.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE Superannuation Funds for the Police Force of the Town and the Police Force of the Suburbs are at present distinct, and the former is in a flourishing financial condition, while the latter is clearly not solvent. This has been brought about by causes which indicate that the burdens of the one fund have in many cases been thrown upon the other, that for executive purposes the two forces have often been treated as one, and that it would be an act of substantial justice to consolidate the two funds.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

ACT V (B.C.) of 1870, which established the Corporation of the Commissioners for making improvements in the Port of Calcutta, has been supplemented by a number of amending enactments, till there are now on the statute-book not less than nine laws dealing with the Calcutta Port Trust. It is thought desirable that these scattered Acts should be consolidated, and that the opportunity should be taken to introduce some further amendments into the law. The present number of 13 Commissioners has been found inconveniently small, and it is proposed to increase the number to 15, of whom two must be natives of India, and to provide for the election of one of the additional Commissioners by the representatives of the native mercantile community. It also appears expedient that the permanent officials of the Port Trust, the Chairman and Vice-Chairman, should not be appointed, like the other Commissioners, for a term of two years only, but should continue to hold office till their successors are appointed. Some obsolete sections of the present Acts have been omitted: the rules relating to the preparation and submission of the budget estimates have been revised: provision has been made for the grant of pensions to the Commissioners' employés: the powers and duties of the Port Police have been defined: and the liability which attaches to the Commissioners, in respect of goods left on their premises or under their charge, has been more clearly explained. With these objects the present Bill has been prepared.

A Bill to provide for the sanitation of Emigrants during their passage through Bengal to the labour districts in Assam

WHEREAS it is provided in section seven of the Inland Emigration Act, 1882, that, subject to the provisions of section five of that Act, nothing in the Act is to be deemed to prohibit any native of India from emigrating to any of the labour districts otherwise than under the provisions of the Act; Preamble.

And whereas natives of India emigrate in large numbers to the labour-districts otherwise than under those provisions;

And whereas in the territories administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal great sickness and mortality have occurred among such emigrants on their way to the labour-districts;

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. This Act may be called the "Inland Emigrants' Health Act, 1889"; Short title, extent and commencement of Act.

(2) It extends to the whole of the territories administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, and

(3) It shall come into force on the day on which it is published in the Calcutta Gazette with the assent of the Governor-General.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,— Definitions.

"Agent" means a person who engages or assists a native of India to emigrate otherwise than under the provisions of the Inland Emigration Act, 1882. "Agent."

"Dependent" means any woman (not being herself an emigrant), child, or aged or incapacitated relative or friend, accompanying an emigrant with the consent of the agent. "Dependent"

"Emigrant" means a native of India engaged or assisted by an agent so to emigrate. "Emigrant."

"Emigrate" denotes the departure of any native of India of the age of sixteen years or upwards (other than a native of any of the labour-districts) from any part of India for the purpose of labouring for hire in any of the labour-districts otherwise than as a domestic servant. "Emigrate."

"Labour-districts" means the districts of Lakhimpur, Sibságar, Nowgong, Darrang, Kámrúp, Goálpára, Khási Hills, Cachar and Sylhet in the Chief Commissionership of Assam. "Labour-districts."

Power to make rules for protection in Bengal of the health of emigrants on their way to Assam

3. The Local Government may from time to time make rules with respect to any of the following matters, namely—

(a) the routes by which emigrants and their dependents are to travel on their way to any of the labour-districts ;

(b) the depôts and rest-houses to be provided by, and at the cost of, agents for the accommodation of emigrants and their dependents on or off such routes, and the sanitation and superintendence of such depôts and rest-houses ;

(c) the mode, and the numerical strength of the parties, in which emigrants and their dependents are to travel, the arrangements to be made by, and at the cost of, agents for facilitating their journey, the length of their daily marches by road, and the provision to be made by, and at the cost of, agents for the carriage of women and dependents and of emigrants suffering from sickness ;

(d) the food to be supplied to emigrants and their dependents by, and at the cost of, agents, and the provision to be made by, and at the cost of, agents for the proper cooking of such food ;

(e) the water-supply to be maintained by, or at the cost of, agents for the use of emigrants and their dependents ;

(f) the clothing to be supplied to emigrants and their dependents by, and at the cost of, agents ;

(g) the hospital accommodation, medical treatment and maintenance to be provided by, or at the cost of, agents for emigrants or their dependents suffering from sickness on their way to any of the labour districts, and the arrangements to be so made, and maintenance so provided, for any emigrant and his dependents where either he or any of them is so suffering;

(h) the disposal of dead bodies of emigrants and their dependents at the cost of agents ;

(i) the powers of entry and inspection which may be exercised for the purposes of any rule under this clause, and the authorities by whom those powers may be exercised ;

(j) the mode of compelling agents to discharge their liabilities under any rule under this clause ; and,

(k) generally, the giving effect to the purposes of this Act.

(2) In making any rule under this section, the Local Government may direct that a breach of it shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, and, when the breach is a continuing breach, with a further fine which may extend to fifty rupees for every day after the first during which the breach continues.

(3) If a rule under this section authorises an officer of the Government to expend any public money in the event of default on the part of an agent to comply with any rule under that section, the money, together with simple interest thereon at the rate of six per cent. yearly, shall be recoverable from the agent under the provisions of the Public Demands Recovery Act, 1889.

(4) Nothing in the last foregoing clause shall be construed to bar a prosecution for any breach of a rule where the breach thereof has been made punishable in pursuance of the power conferred by clause (2) of this section.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE Inland Emigration Act of 1882, following in this respect the tenour of the law previously in force, makes ample provision for the sanitary arrangements connected with "labourers" on their way to Assam ; but little benefit results, because the definition of "labourer" given in the Act is so restricted that it does not, under existing circumstances, apply to the majority of the emigrants during their journey through Bengal. The term is limited to persons who have executed labour contracts—a proceeding now very generally deferred until the emigrants have arrived at their destination, or at least until they have passed beyond the confines of Bengal. The expediency of permitting contracts under the Act to be postponed to so late a stage is under consideration, but meanwhile it is urgently necessary to provide for the sanitary supervision of emigrants on their journey, and particularly for the inspection of the lodging-houses and depôts in which they are detained. This has been done in the present Bill by giving to the Lieutenant-Governor power to make rules for the sanitary protection of all emigrants, similar to those which he exercises under Act I of 1882 in regard to "labourers."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE cemeteries and burial-grounds in the neighbourhood of Calcutta have hitherto been under no adequate control or supervision. This especially applies to the public cemeteries in which large numbers are annually interred, without adequate precautions against using the same ground too frequently, or against other insanitary arrangements. A Committee largely composed of Mohammedan gentlemen has recommended the creation of a Mohammedan Burial Board constituted on the same general lines as the Christian Burial Board, as the best remedy for these evils.

2. It is proposed to vest it with powers to make rules for the management of public Mohammedan burial-grounds, a list of which is contained in the Schedule, and to authorize it to charge fees, not exceeding a maximum scale to be introduced into the Act, for the maintenance of these cemeteries. Power is also given to take over other cemeteries so as to provide for the wants of the Mohammedan community, which are in excess of the ground now available for the use of the public.

STATEMENT OF THE COURSE OF LEGISLATION.

THE Hon'ble the President said:—"I believe I am following the usual course in making a brief statement regarding the course of legislation which I think should be laid before the Council. I ought to begin by apologising to you for calling you together at this late period of the Session, at the end of March, with five Bills on the list, when you have been attending here without having any work to do in the way of legislation during the whole of the cold weather But circumstances connected with the Bills have put me in such a position during the whole of these months that I had absolutely no Bill which I could bring before you, and every one of these Bills, as it happened, has been returned to me by the Government of India only within the last week In the case of some of them this was due to the rule, with which you are all probably acquainted, that those Bills which have to be sent home to the Secretary of State have to remain in abeyance a couple of months in order to give him an opportunity of expressing any views he might have, with power, in case no reply comes from him within that time, to proceed to legislation. In reference to others there has been a continuous correspondence with the Government of India, and the shape legislation ought to take has only been practically settled within the last week or two. That, gentlemen, is my explanation and apology, but at the same time I must express my regret that I have called you together at the hottest period of the year to ask you to undertake the work of going on with these Bills

"I may as well deal with the Bills one by one and explain, as far as I can, what my own personal views are as to the progress which we are likely, or which we ought to, make in regard to them. The first Bill on the list is in the hands of the Advocate-General, and it is a Bill for the protection of the rights of fishing in private fisheries. The history of this Bill I propose to give at some little greater length than in regard to the others, as it is one of some considerable importance. It had its origin in a memorial which was sent up to the Government of Bengal last year by the British Indian Association, supported, besides, by a numerous and influential body of zemindars, both European and Native, outside that Association. The memorial was to the effect that an exclusive right in fisheries had always been possessed by zemindars, and the income from these exclusive rights were included in their assets on which the permanent settlement was assessed and on which revenue was levied; but that these exclusive rights which they had always been in the habit of freely exercising, and from which they derived a very considerable income, were now jeopardised by a series of decisions of the courts—decisions which, though they may not have changed the law, yet brought into prominence a reading of the law which left the zemindars without adequate protection, and in consequence of which the memorialists desire that the Government should legislate with the view of securing their rights. On receiving the memorial the Government of Bengal referred it to the Board of Revenue, with the view, if possible, of getting reliable figures to give something like an adequate idea of the value of the interests to be protected. The result of that reference has not been altogether satisfactory as far as getting anything like correct figures is concerned. But it had this effect that we have been able to obtain both from the Board of Revenue and the other officers consulted, who were the leading Commissioners of Divisions, very decided views as to the exceeding importance of the interests to be protected and the absolute necessity of doing something to protect them. I shall not attempt to go into details in regard to the legal aspects of the case, as these will be laid before you in a very much more efficient way by the Advocate-General; but, briefly put, I may say that whereas the opinion ordinarily held, doubtless by the outside public and certainly by many officers of the Government, was that in private fisheries of all kinds any one taking fish without permission might be punished, yet these decisions made it perfectly clear that that view was an incorrect one, that except where the fish might be enclosed in a tank or other water, in which there was no outlet to enable them to escape, there was no possession such as would enable the person who took them unlawfully, to be punished for theft or criminal trespass. The meaning of that was that there was no punishment or remedy to be found in the criminal courts. Of course no wrong was without its remedy, and people might go if they liked to the civil courts, but I need not tell you that the idea of referring people to the civil courts for their remedy in a case where their fish had been stolen was more than a mockery. It was under these circumstances that the memorialists addressed us. I shall read just one or two paragraphs from the memorial.

'The result of these decisions, however correct they may be in law, has been to put in imminent jeopardy the rights of landholders and of the Government to fisheries in waters in communication with tidal streams and navigable rivers which, as above shown, are most valuable rights. An impression has gained ground in certain districts that where a julkur is not enclosed, the landholder has no right to the fish, and landholders' complaints of wrongful abstraction of fish from julkurs situated within their estates have since been generally dismissed.

'Your memorialists humbly insist that the right of landholders to julkurs situated within their estates and talooks, whether in the form of enclosed tanks, running streams, or large jheels and bheels in communication with tidal rivers, is unquestionable, and has been recognized in a long series of decisions.

'This right was recognized by the Mohammedan rulers of the country; and the British Government, in making a permanent settlement of the land revenue of these provinces, expressly incorporated in that settlement the rents and profits realizable from this description of property.'

"They go on afterwards to say—

'It would be worse than useless for private landholders, or even for the Government to endeavour to protect their rights by bringing civil suits against persons infringing rights of fishery by unlawfully taking fish, and your memorialists respectfully urge that it is imperatively necessary for the protection of these rights that such persons should be punishable summarily under the criminal law.

'It has been ably argued, and with much learning, that the taking of fish under such circumstances is not theft; but however that may be, it has generally, as shown above, been looked upon and treated as theft in this country, and your memorialists are convinced that no punishment, short of the punishment of theft, will be sufficient to deter offenders and afford adequate protection to the rights of your memorialists and of the Government.'

"After hearing from the Board of Revenue and the local authorities on the subject, the Government of Bengal applied to the Government of India recommending legislation. That Government assented and asked that the draft Bill be sent up to them. The grounds on which we made our recommendations were these:—

'There can be little doubt, therefore, that the value of julkur property will be seriously impaired, if not altogether destroyed, when the real state of the law becomes generally known and when the mass of the people realize that violation of julkur rights is not a criminal offence; for the people likely to commit such violations belong to the poorest classes, and it would be mere waste of money to sue them in the civil court. The result is that proprietors and lessees of julkurs have practically no remedy when their rights are attacked.

'The zemindars are clearly entitled on equitable grounds to ask that Government should provide adequate protection for property, from which it derives a considerable revenue, and the special character of which has been recognized throughout the entire period of our rule in India The argument from expediency is equally strong. There can be no doubt that, when the state of the law gets generally known, there will be constant attempts made everywhere to fish in private fisheries without the consent of the owners. The landholding classes, if they find that the law does not afford them adequate protection in such cases, will take other means to protect right to which they attach great value, and there will certainly be many cases in which violence will be used on one or both sides if the law is left as at present. The economic argument is also not without considerable weight, that unless these rights are protected, there will be a serious diminution in the fish supply, owing to the wanton destruction and waste of fish which will result. From this point of view, the promiscuous killing of fish by a crowd of persons is much to be deprecated; for while the benefit to the poorer classes could only be temporary, it would certainly be purchased at the cost of a diminution of the fish supply in the future.'

"The Bill was sent on to the Government of India, with a suggestion on my part that, as probably the same difficulties would be found in other provinces besides Bengal, the Government of India themselves might be willing to legislate on the subject in the Viceroy's Council, but upon that point their reply was in the negative, as the peculiar state of circumstances existed principally in Bengal and Assam. They, therefore, recommend that legislation should be undertaken in this Council. The Advocate-General will tell you what the details of the Bill are, but the punishment provided is very lenient, as for the first offence a fine of Rs. 50 will be inflicted, and for subsequent offences imprisonment for one month and a fine of Rs. 200. I do not think there will be much difference of opinion as to the propriety of this legislation on principle, but I have no doubt there will be certain difficulties with regard to the definition of private fisheries, and it is to this point that the Select Committee will have to devote considerable attention. The Bill, I trust, will be brought in next Saturday and referred to a Select Committee. Its subsequent progress will of course depend upon the view the Select Committee will take of it. The question is one of some importance, and the sooner protection can be given to the zemindar, I think you will all agree, the better. So much for the Private Fisheries Bill.

"The next is a Bill 'to consolidate the Calcutta and Suburban Police Superannuation Funds.' This is a small technical matter, which Sir Henry Harrison will explain to you, and on which I need not dwell.

"The next Bill is one of more considerable importance. It is in its inception a purely consolidating Bill to bring into one form or Act the law which at present runs through several, and opportunity will be taken to make several alterations and changes. There has been considerable discussion as to whether a considerable alteration should not be effected in the financial position of the Port Commissioners; but this having been negatively decided by the Government of India, the changes really made in a substantive part of the law are not very considerable. This Bill will also be referred to a Select Committee next Saturday, but its future progress is not a matter of immediate urgency, and I shall not urge you to press on with it beyond what the Select Committee thinks fit to advise.

"The next Bill 'for the appointment of a Mohammedan Burial Board in Calcutta' is the outcome of the enquiries and cogitations of a Committee appointed last year to take into consideration the bad state of the many Mohammedan burial-grounds and the difficulties that are to be met with in controlling and in finding more room for the burial of Mohammedans in new burial-grounds. The Committee was a very strong one, for it had representatives of the Mohammedan community as well as officers of the Government and Municipality in it, and their recommendations have been embodied in this Bill which Sir Henry Harrison will explain to you.

"The last Bill is one which I shall have to explain to you at a later period of this morning's business. I may say now that it had its origin in a serious outbreak of cholera last year, in which nearly 600 coolie emigrants to Assam died, and which led to the Local Government putting an end altogether to coolie emigration from some of the labour districts. I will reserve further details till I ask for leave to introduce it; but I wish only to mention now that I look upon this Bill as the most urgent one we have on our list, because the cholera season is now on, and if anything at all is to be done it should be done quickly.

"I have only one thing more to say, and it is a subject which I approach with great regret. It is to inform you that this is the last day on which I believe we shall have the advantage of the mature counsel and experience of my hon'ble friend Mr. Reynolds, who has sat so long in this Council and has assisted it so ably. I am quite sure I am expressing not only my own views, but the feeling of all the Members of the Council in saying that it is with extreme regret we look to his departure, and both this Council and the Government generally will feel the severance of his connection as a severe loss to the public."

PRIVATE FISHERIES BILL.

The Hon'ble the Advocate-General moved for leave to introduce a Bill for the protection of the right of fishing in private fisheries. He said:—

"Private rights of fishery as opposed to public rights of fishery may be broadly classed under the following heads: the right of fishing in navigable rivers granted by the Government to private individuals. Rights of this description have been granted according to the law of this country, but have been discontinued since 1868. Secondly, the right of fishing in Government estates granted to private individuals; and thirdly, rights of fishery granted to zemindars on the assessment of revenue which they continue to pay. Civil suits may, no doubt, be successfully maintained for the infringement of private rights of fishery, and where injuries are threatened, or often repeated, I believe the Civil Court would grant an injunction. The remedy by civil suits, however, is dilatory and expensive, and having regard to the class of persons, the poorer classes, who would be likely to infringe these private rights of fishery by fishing and taking fish, it may well be said that the remedy by civil suit would be a mere waste of money. Under these circumstances, it is evident that, in order to provide an effective remedy against the infringement of private rights, a remedy of a summary and coercive character should exist.

"On turning to the memorial of the British Indian Association, I find the following statement: "Under British rule, both before and after the passing of the Penal Code, Magistrates have been in the habit, in accordance with the popular view, of convicting of theft persons proved to have unlawfully taken fish," and I find the same view held by two officers of experience, one of whom is Mr. Smith, the Commissioner of the Presidency Division. In his letter of the 21st April, 1888, addressed to the Board of Revenue, he says:—

'To make the offence punishable as theft would be only to legalise what has been the uniform custom of the country until recent decisions have questioned the legality of the practice.'

"Mr. Lowis, Commissioner of the Rajshahye Division, in his letter of the 21st June, 1888, concurs in the same view of the matter. I have not been able to find that this was the law of this country at any time. I have not been able to discover a single case in the Nizamut Adawlut reports, and the Mohammedan law contains no provision constituting the taking of fish out of water which forms the subject of a private fishery a criminal offence. The reference made by the British Indian Association to the Hidaya in paragraph 2 of their letter does not touch the question.

That being so, I now turn to the decisions of the High Courts. These decisions have been carefully collected for the Bengal Government, and although most of them bear in the same direction, I shall merely refer to a few of them. In a case decided on 20th March, 1873, by Justices Kemp and Pontifex, it was held that the taking of fish from a public navigable river in which another has a right to fish is not theft, nor does the catching of fish in a navigable river render the person so doing liable to be convicted under the Penal Code. That case is reported in the 19th Vol. of the Weekly Reporter, Criminal Rulings, in page 47. I find in a Madras case of 23rd October, 1878, (Indian Law Reports, 5, Madras Series, 391, note) it was held that fish living in open irrigation tanks were not in possession in such a sense as to render their capture and removal a theft. In a Bombay case (Indian Law Reports, 10, Bombay, 193), where the accused were found fishing without permission in a municipal tank, it was held that they could be convicted of theft, as the tank from which the fish were taken was apparently an enclosed tank and the fish were therefore of restrained liberty and liable to be taken at any time according to the pleasure of the owner, and were therefore subjects of theft. Then a case came before Chief Justice Petheram and Mr. Justice Ghose, known as the Meherpore case, in which it was decided that fish in a bhil or natural lake was the property of no one, and until reduced into possession no property could be acquired by any one, and that the capture of such fish in a wild state could not be the subject of theft.

"Then there was another decision of the same two Judges in July 1887, affirming the same principle; and lastly, there were two decisions of Justices Norris and Ghose, to the effect that fish in a public river could not be said to be the property of the person who may have the fishery right, and that where a tank was dependent on the overflow of a neighbouring channel which was connected with flowing streams for its supply of fish, and that the fish could leave it at pleasure, the taking of fish from such tank was not theft. Now the first decision of the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Ghose in 1887 was a decision which broadly laid down that there could be no property in fish in a natural state and not restrained of liberty, and I would also point out that although in that case the fish were in a bhil, the bhil was fed by channels which communicated with natural streams on two sides. Were it assumed in that case that at the moment of time when the fish were captured the bhil resembled a tank having no communication at that time with other waters, no conviction for theft in respect of the taking of fish would have been sustainable at the instance of the complainant, who had merely a fishery right in such bhil, the bhil itself and the water it contained belonging probably to the zemindar.

"Now an elementary principle of English law was laid down thus:—

'There is a principle of our law which will be noticed more fully in its proper place that, in general, no man can make title to animals feræ naturæ, for these while they remain wild are accounted nullius in bonis (or what amounts to the same thing) as the common property of mankind.' (Stephen's Commentaries, page 684.)

"The Roman law was substantially the same. Sander's Institutes of Justinian, p. 96:—

'Wild beasts, birds, fish, that is, all animals which live either in the sea, the air, or on the earth, as soon as they are taken by any one, immediately become by the law of nations the property of the captor, for natural reason gives to the first captor that which had no previous owner. And it is immaterial whether a man takes wild beasts or birds upon his own ground or on that of another, &c.'

"Deducing a principle from the nature of the subject itself, it appears to me that the elementary principle of law to which I have referred is of general application, applicable to this country as elsewhere. The Judges who decided these cases in the High Courts merely applied an elementary principle of law of general application. And if I may be permitted to say so, I think their decisions are sound and accurate. The case decided by Justices Komp and Pontifex in 1873 seemed to produce no alarm, nor was it, as far as I know, the subject of any hostile criticism. But the later decisions in the Meherpur case and in one or two other cases have been objected to, and have been assailed with considerable warmth. I am prepared to admit that the Judges of the High Courts are not infallible, but I think those who endeavour to impeach the decisions of the highest tribunals of this country and the opinions of Judges of experience should put forward a strong case. Such a case might be made by reference to decided cases which contravene the decisions objected to, or by challenging the principle on which the decisions are rested, or by showing that other acknowledged and well-recognised principles apply to the subject itself. Now, those who have made objections have done nothing of the kind. As far as decided cases go, there are absolutely none that could be brought forward. With regard to contravening the principle upon which the Chief Justice based his decision, I may say that the proposition is too elementary and too well-founded to be controverted. No attempt was made to show that any other well-recognised principle of law applied to the case. Under these circumstances the objections, as far as I am aware, resolve themselves into irrelevant arguments, vituperative assertions, and an array of words which exhibit a confusion of thought as to the meaning of "property" and "possession," and demonstrate nothing beyond a want of familiarity with the subject under consideration.

"The propositions which have been laid down by the High Courts are summarised ably and tersely by Mr. Edgar. He says in his letter of 6th September, 1888, as follows:—'The law relating to this subject, as gathered from the series of judicial decisions given in Mr. Beeby's note, may be summarised as follows:—

'There is no remedy under the criminal law in the case of the infringement of julkur rights, except where the fish are taken from an enclosed tank in which they had been restrained from their natural liberty. The fact of fish being in a public river does not make the fish in it the property of the person who has the fishery right in such river, and nobody can be said to be in possession of them, as they are feræ naturæ. The right of fishing is not properly of such a nature that a man who infringes it can be said to commit criminal trespass. Fish in a tank enclosed on all sides, but dependent upon the overflow of a neighbouring channel for its supply of fish, are not restrained of their natural liberty at a time when floods are high, and are consequently under such circumstances feræ naturæ, and their capture is not a criminal offence. Wild fish in a bhil are not the property of any person till caught, nor are fish in a creek or in an open tank made for the purposes of irrigation. On the other hand, it is theft to take fish from an enclosed tank where fish are restrained of their natural liberty and are liable to be taken at any time by the owner of the tank.'

"The decisions of the High Court having disposed of the question of taking fish otherwise than from an enclosed tank, and pronounced it not to be theft, it follows that there can be no criminal trespass, viz. trespass done with the view of committing a criminal offence. In the same way all notion of criminal misappropriation disappear, because there must be something appropriated which was the property of some one. There being no property in the fish, it follows that a charge of criminal misappropriation does not lie.

"His Honour the President has already referred to the memorial of the British Indian Association, which appears to me to state the case of the zemindars in a temperate spirit and to be supported by very fair reasoning, although I do not agree in some of the legal positions taken in it. This letter shows what I have adverted to, namely, that, in the present state of the law, there is no sufficient or efficient protection of private rights of fishery. It is therefore necessary that some coercive measure should be introduced by the Legislature for the protection of private rights of fishery; and that will be the object of the Bill I ask leave to introduce.

"The Bill will be a short one, and will be directed to three points, viz. to make the infringement of private rights of fishery punishable under the law, to make trespass penal under the same circumstances, and to prevent persons using contrivances and devices for the purpose of catching fish which they have no right to take. I think the Bill will be sufficient to effect the purposes in regard to which the British Indian Association has addressed the Government."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

POLICE SUPERANNUATION FUNDS BILL.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Harrison moved for leave to introduce a Bill to consolidate the Calcutta and the Suburban Police Superannuation Funds. He said:—

"As His Honour the President has already stated, this Bill is a small one. It merely amends one or two sections in the existing law, and I can briefly describe the object of it. The Police Forces of the town and suburbs are both under the Commissioner of Police, but by law they are separate forces, and the funds for providing pensions for the lower grades of officers and men for each of these two forces have hitherto been separate funds, but as a matter of fact the two forces have been practically very closely allied to one another. It is natural that the superior officers of the Police have availed themselves sometimes of the services of the town police in the suburbs and vice versâ, and transfers of officers and men between the two forces have been frequent. Some time ago it was found that of the two Police Superannuation Funds, that of the town was apparently quite solvent, while that of the suburbs was falling into a state of insolvency. In a letter which I as Commissioner of Police addressed to the Government in 1886, I pointed out the condition of the two funds, and the reasons for the conditions in which they respectively were. The reason for the different conditions of the two funds was this, that every policeman drew his pension or gratuity from the fund of the Force to which he was attached at the time of his retirement, irrespective of the Force in which his services had been performed. It would probably have been more strictly correct if his services in each force had been counted up, and the pension or gratuity were drawn from the two funds in proportion to the term of his service in each Force. It had been assumed that there would be an equal quantity of give and take, but that had not been the case. In the suburbs the men were more unhealthy, and there was a larger proportion of retirements, and hence while the men drawing pensions from the Town Fund were only a fraction exceeding four per cent., those from the suburbs were more than nine per cent., and the gratuities paid were somewhat in the same proportion. It was pointed out that the fairest course would be to treat the two Forces in law, as they were in fact, as one and the same Force, and to amalgamate the two Superannuation Funds. I think satisfactory reasons have been adduced to show that this would involve no practical injustice to either Force, and after considerable correspondence between the Government of Bengal and the Government of India, it was finally decided that that was the proper course to adopt. The object of the present Bill was simply to unite and amalgamate the two Police Superannuation Funds."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

CALCUTTA PORT BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. Reynolds moved for leave to introduce a Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the Port Trust of Calcutta. He said:—

"The Calcutta Port Trust is a Corporation which has not yet attained to the age of legal majority. It was established, as the Council is probably aware, under Act V of 1870, and is consequently 19 years of age. But if it is an infant, it is a thriving and vigorous one. No one who remembers the condition of the river foreshore 20 years ago can refuse to the Port Commissioners the right to indulge a feeling of pardonable pride in the improvements they have effected. The reclamation of the river banks, the jetties, the tramway, the tea warehouse, the petroleum depôt, the improved light-ships, the admirable charts of the river which have been issued, are all monuments of the energy and success with which the Port Commissioners have discharged the duties entrusted to them. They are now engaged upon the greatest work they have yet taken in hand—the construction of the docks at Kidderpore. This work is making excellent progress, and it may be confidently anticipated that it will prove a great financial and commercial success. The operations of the Port Commissioners have not been confined to the Calcutta side of the river, for on the Howrah side they have reclaimed a large tract of land, and have made an excellent road along the foreshore. And all those improvements have been effected not only without any addition to the charges upon trade, but with an actual lightening of them. Calcutta from its geographical position can never be a cheap port, the fees for pilotage and towage must always handicap this port when compared with Bombay, but the Port Commissioners have been able to reduce the pilotage charges, and to do away altogether with the port dues which were formerly levied. As a port due produces about Rs. 80,000 for each anna of the rate, the abolition of a four annas port due implies a relief to the shipping to the extent of about three-and-a-quarter lakhs per annum.

"Honour should be given where honour is due; and I therefore think it right to say that the success which has attended the administration of the Commissioners has been largely due to two individuals: to their first Chairman, Mr. Schalch, who laid down the lines of policy which the Commissioners have steadily followed, and to Mr. Duff Bruce, who was for 17 years the Vice-Chairman and Engineer of the Port Trust. But in bringing out these two names for special mention, I ought to add that their efforts would have had little result if they and their successors had not enjoyed (as I am happy to say they have enjoyed) the confidence and the co-operation of the Chamber of Commerce and of the mercantile community in general. Mr. Schalch may have been the head, and Mr. Bruce the right hand, but the backbone of the Port Trust is, and always has been, the Chamber of Commerce.

"The legislative charter of the Port Trust is Act V of 1870, but this Act was necessarily of a somewhat tentative character, as the establishment of a Port Trust in Calcutta was at first of the nature of an experiment. The experiment had been tried in another form by Act X of 1866, which vested the management of the Port in a Committee of the Calcutta Justices. The experiment in this form proved a failure, and hence it was natural that the Act of 1870 should have been somewhat cautiously worded, and should have contained various restrictions. But as the duties and responsibilities of the Commissioners increased, and their administration was shown to be successful, the original Act of 1870 was supplemented by a number of amending Acts, all of which were in the direction of extending the powers conferred on the Commissioners. The most important of these are Act IV of 1880, which deals with the borrowing powers of the Commissioners; Act II of 1885, which authorized the construction of the Kidderpore Docks; and Act III of 1887, which introduced the elective principle into the constitution of the Trust.

"The result is that now we have altogether nine Acts dealing with the Port Trust of Calcutta, and I believe the Council will agree that the time has come when it is advisable, and indeed necessary, that these Acts should be consolidated. The Bill, as I have said, is in the main a consolidating measure, but occasion has been taken to introduce some amendments. I need not at this stage of the Bill go into details, but I should like to call attention to one or two of the more salient provisions of the Bill. I would first ask attention to the title of the Bill which in itself is an acknowledgment of the good work which the Port Commissioners have done. The title of this Bill is to be 'The Calcutta Port Act, 1889.' The title of Act V of 1870 is 'An Act to appoint Commissioners for making Improvements in the Port of Calcutta.' The improvements contemplated by that Act have now for the greater part been made, and the main duty of the Port Commissioners in future would not be to make improvements, but to manage and administer a port which has already been improved. The first Chapter of the Bill relates to the constitution of the Port Commissioners, the number of whom it is now proposed to increase. I may remind the Council that by the original Act nine Commissioners were appointed, but it was very soon found necessary to raise the number to 12, and in 1881 it was raised to 13, with the object of adding a member to represent Howrah. In the Act of 1887 the number was still kept at 13, but it was enacted that two of the Commissioners should be natives. By that Act four of the Commissioners were to be appointed by the Chamber of Commerce, one by the Trades' Association, and one by the Calcutta Municipality; that made six; and seven were to be appointed by the Government, so that unless some of the elected members were natives, two of the number appointed by the Government must be natives. That restricted the choice of the Government to a very small number of persons, and it was desirable that the Port Trust should contain some one representing the Marine Department and also some representative of the Railways. Under this Bill it was proposed to increase the number to 15, consisting of a Chairman, a Vice-Chairman, seven elected members and six nominated members, and it was still provided that not less than two of the members should be natives. Of the seven elected members, four were to be elected as now by the Chamber of Commerce, one by the Trades' Association and one by the Municipal Commissioners of the town, and the seventh was to be elected by such body or bodies or firms representing the native mercantile houses, as the Lieutenant-Governor might direct. The Council would remember that this proposal was brought forward when the Act of 1887 was under discussion, but it was not then thought that the time had come for introducing a provision of the kind. The only other change proposed in the constitution of the Trust was the section which proposed that the Chairman and the Vice-Chairman should not vacate their offices at the end of two years, like the other Commissioners, who were appointed or elected, but should continue to hold office during the pleasure of the Government. The next Chapter of the Bill dealt with the borrowing powers of the Commissioners, and here no material changes were proposed. The debt of the Port Trust at present might be classified under four heads. First, there was the item of Rs. 17,65,000, which represented the value of the block made over to the Port Commissioners by the Government when the Trust was established in 1870. The principal of that amount was not repayable, but only interest at 4½ per cent. payable half-yearly. The second item was the amount of the unliquidated portion of the sum advanced by the Government to the Port Trust between the years 1870 and 1880, and which is being repaid by a sinking fund, under which the whole amount will be repaid in 30 years; the present amount was about 40 or 42 lakhs. The third item consisted of the public loans which had been raised, of which there were three, aggregating 60 lakhs. These were secured by debentures, which would be repaid at the end of 30 years. And the fourth item consisted of advances made by the Government for the construction of the Kidderpore Docks, the amount expended up to the present time being about 125 lakhs. The Bill proposed that the amounts due under these several heads by the Port Commissioners should be secured on the entire property and income of the Trust, that principle having been accepted when the Acts of 1880 and 1881 were passed. Some hon'ble members may recollect that when the Act of 1880 was passed, the wording of the Act was considered to be such that it gave to the Government and the Secretary of State some amount of advantage or preference for the recovery of the amount due to them as compared with the public creditor who might lend his money. How far that was really the case, I can hardly say. However, it was sufficient to make the raising of loans unsuccessful, and another Act was passed in 1881 making it perfectly clear that the Government and the Secretary of State would fall under the same category, and have the same rights, as any other creditor, and that was the principle adopted in framing this Bill.

"I do not think there is anything further of much importance that should be mentioned. A few provisions have been inserted in order to enable the Commissioners to give pensions to their servants and to define more clearly the position and duties of the River Police; also some sections relating to the mode of preparing the budget which would merely legalise the practice which has prevailed for many years, but which is not strictly in accordance with the letter of the previous Acts; and there was also a provision defining the liability of the Commissioners in respect of goods whilst in their custody."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

MOHAMMEDAN BURIAL BOARD'S BILL.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Harrison moved for leave to introduce a Bill to provide for the appointment of a Mohammedan Burial Board in Calcutta. He said:—

"As His Honour the President has already explained, this Bill is due to the report of a Committee which sat last year to inquire into the question of Mohammedan cemeteries. The Mohammedan community, as was well known, like the Christian community, disposed of their dead by burying, and as that community in and around Calcutta exceeds 200,000 souls, it was evident that the question of the burial of their dead was well worthy the attention of the Legislature. Hitherto, possibly owing to the wise policy of the Government to abstain to interfere as far as possible in all religious matters, no continuous action had been taken in regard to Mohammedan cemeteries, but the same cause which made the Government hold its hand had in fact paralysed the Mohammedan community, because they had no power to regulate the affairs of their own cemeteries, and it was quite in accordance with the wishes of that community that what I may call an enabling Act should be passed which would enable them by means of a Board of the Mohammedan community, assisted by some of the local officials, to control and regulate the affairs of their own public cemeteries. There are possibly over a hundred Mohammedan cemeteries of all kinds in Calcutta and the Suburbs. The greater portion of these are private cemeteries, and they are usually well looked after by their owners. But there are about twelve public Mohammedan cemeteries which are under no adequate control. The effect of the Bill would be that a Mohammedan Burial Board would be appointed which would have power to frame rules to control and regulate burials in these public cemeteries and charge fees, and though they would have a hard task before them, the effect would be very beneficial, as they would have the power not only to prescribe the conditions under which burials should take place, but also to extend the ground available for interment."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

EMIGRANTS' SANITATION BILL.

The Hon'ble the President moved for leave to introduce a Bill to provide for the sanitation of emigrants during their passage in Bengal to the labour districts in Assam He said:—

"As I mentioned just now, the immediate urgency of this Bill is the serious outbreak of cholera which occurred last year, leading to more than 600 deaths among coolies, nearly all of whom were emigrants from certain districts. But that was not the only cause; and in order to explain the remoter reasons for the Bill, I shall have to go a little further back. You are all aware that, previous to the introduction of Act I of 1882, all emigration to Assam was controlled by the Government. It was penal to take or assist any coolies to emigrate except under certain specific restrictions. The recruiter who collected coolies was licensed, and before he was so licensed, enquiries were made into his character, and he was registered before a Magistrate, who knew where he could put his hand on him, and who also knew where he could put his hand on the contractor under whom he worked; and, similarly, the garden sirdar got his certificate from his employer, which certificate was registered before the Magistrate. Then, after the coolies were collected, they were taken to a depôt which was open to the Magistrate's inspection, and was subject to sanitary control. Whether the depôt was in Calcutta or elsewhere, it was constantly supervised and inspected. After being collected, the coolies were placed before the Magistrate of the district in which they were collected. They were detained there a short time by the Magistrate, and there they entered into contracts for labour. When this was done, they went up to Assam under the supervision either of a garden sirdar or of the contractor's people, and in any case they went along a specific route. They stopped at certain specified places where sanitary arrangements were made, they were inspected and looked after, and, where needed, medical services were secured by the Government. The man in charge had a way-bill with the names and numbers of the emigrants, so that they could be traced and enquiries made all along their route, and their sanitation, at all events, was carefully looked after. That was the state of the law until Act I of 1882 came in. That Act maintained the old system practically without alteration in regard to these coolies who were collected by garden sirdars and licensed recruiters, and by contractors who were registered. But simultaneously with that system Act I of 1882 allowed another system to grow up. The framers put in a new section, to say that nothing in this Act should interfere with coolies going up to Assam otherwise than under this Act. Unquestionably the framer of this Act looked forward to a number of free coolies finding their way to Assam, and who, when they got up there, could give their labour to whomever they chose, or, if they did not like to do so, could come back again, and who, to a certain extent, might take advantage of what is termed 'haggling in the market' for what wages they wanted. If the vista which rose before the view of the framers of the Act had been a real one, if what they foresaw had actually come to pass, and a number of free coolies had found their way up, it would have been pleasant for the coolies, it would have been pleasant for the Government, it would have been well for Assam, and it would have been the first step towards getting rid of a penal Act. But what did occur has been the reverse of what the framers of the Act expected. They wanted to get rid of middlemen, the recruiter and contractor, who collected these coolies. They wanted to get rid of these men, and also no doubt to get rid of the expenses which that system involved. But what has happened? The contractor remains, and he is neither licensed or known to the Magistrate; the recruiter remains, and he is not registered or licensed, and no enquiry into his character made; anybody can go about to do the business, and the natural result is that it has gravitated to the lowest and worst possible characters. The coolies collected under this system are 'free' coolies; they are lodged in the recruiter's depôt: this depôt is not inspected, nor is it under the Magistrate's control, and the coolies may be here to-day and in another place to-morrow. No one has power to supervise them. There is not that opportunity which the Magistrate ought to have of enquiring who the recruiters are, or who their coolies are, and to all intents and purposes they remain outside the control and supervision of the Act. There is no possibility of protection, and there is no sanitary regard for them. Thus they are at the mercy of the recruiters and sirdars, and when once collected they are carried off to Assam without any more sanitary supervision than that of any ordinary passengers.

"The difference between them and the ordinary passengers is that they go in hundreds and have to stay wherever the contractor's men wish to stay; they cannot easily escape, their communications with the outer world are, to a great extent, cut off, and if cholera breaks out among them they are helpless. As I said before, cholera broke out among them last year. Advice was asked for and was received from the Sanitary Commissioner and from the Superintendent of Inland Emigration. Under their advice the officers of Government used what powers they had to examine and control the sanitary condition of the depôts wherever they were found, and some arrangements were made by the Government railways for providing medical attendance and sanitary supervision of the coolies on their railways; but these executive arrangements had but little legal basis and were at the best insufficient, and ultimately the flow of emigration had to be stopped entirely both from Ranigunge and from Chota Nagpur. It was in July last that I addressed the Government of India on the subject. The sanitary condition of affairs was the urgent and immediate need; but I also took the opportunity, perhaps unfortunately, of suggesting that the matter of the registration and licensing of those middlemen and agents should be taken up and dealt with by the Legislature at the same time. The result of my bringing the two subjects together in the same letter, and recommending legislation on both of them, was that the question of the registration and supervision of middlemen, which necessitated unquestionably the alteration of Act I of 1882, was referred to the Chief Commissioner of Assam, and after some correspondence was postponed to be dealt with when the report of the Chief Commissioner should be received as to the working of the Act generally with the view of considering what alterations in Act I of 1882 were necessary. This discussion has practically taken up a good deal of the last part of the current year. In the meantime the sanitation part of the subject was for the time being postponed. Finally, I proposed that the Government of India might approve of a temporary Sanitary Act which might bring all middlemen taking free coolies to Assam under the same rules as those which now apply to garden sirdars and their recruits.

"I ought to have mentioned before that, whereas, two years after Act I of 1882 was passed, the number of coolies who went up the Brahmaputra valley under registration, that is to say, under the contract section of the Act, was about 13,000: the number of those who took advantage of the new section was in 1884 about the same number, viz., 12,000. Gradually, however, the free coolies, as they are called, as might be expected, gained very largely over the contract coolies, that is to say, the advantage of not being put under any supervising or controlling power, and of putting your coolies under contract on arrival at Dhubri instead of here in the district, is obviously found more convenient to those who collect coolies than to have them registered at the place of collection and carried on under the supervision and control of the Act; so that at the present day something like 85 per cent. of free coolies arrive not under the control of the law. During the last year the number of coolies recruited under the supervision section was 3,800, whereas the number of free coolies was 21,800; in other words, the free coolie system is rapidly displacing the other one, and I think I have sufficiently shown that all the conditions require them to be brought under sanitary supervision just as much as coolies under contract, and fully justify the measure which I ask for leave to bring in. As I have said, I sent up a suggestion to the Government of India this year for bringing them under the same rules as garden sirdar-coolies, and after a little consideration the reply from the Government of India was that this would involve a distinct alteration of Act I of 1882 which this Council is powerless to pass, and they suggested instead that the Bill should take another shape, that is, the shape in which it has been now drafted, which they assure me is within the scope of this Council. They have sent up a sketch of the Bill in order to show the shape which it might take without encroaching upon the special power reserved to the Viceroy's Council. The Bill really requires the Lieutenant-Governor to make rules for all necessary sanitation. I propose, if the necessary power of this kind is given me, to exercise it by merely taking the rules as they now exist with regard to garden sirdars, and by making the necessary alterations and bringing the two classes as closely as possible under the same sanitary supervision. The Bill does not go beyond sanitary supervision, and under the circumstances it is just as well it does not. I am very anxious that the whole subject should be very carefully considered, for if any general Bill is passed it must be passed in the Viceroy's Council, and not in this, but in the meantime I feel there is a very urgent and serious responsibility laying upon us not to allow the cholera season to pass without at least doing all in our power to check the grievous mortality and the sufferings to which I have alluded, and now it is my duty to ask you to assist me by allowing me to introduce the Bill which will be laid before you next week with the necessary papers on the subject."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Saturday, the 6th April, 1889.

WORKING OF THE INLAND EMIGRATION ACT, I OF 1882, IN CHITTAGONG.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT—INLAND EMIGRATION.

Calcutta, the 3rd April, 1889.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

Memorandum No. 246GM—IX-5, dated the 9th March, 1889, from the Commissioner of the Chittagong Division, and enclosed report from the Magistrate of Chittagong, on the working of the Inland Emigration Act I of 1882 during the year 1888.

The number of labourers employed under the Act in Chittagong, which has been decreasing for many years, fell during 1888 from 433 to 257, the diminution being due to the growing and laudable preference of employers for free labour. No coolies are entered as imported during the year, and only 82 executed local contracts. There were as many as 36 desertions with 13 cases of imprisonment, and the Magistrate of Chittagong states, in explanation of the large proportion which these figures bear to the return of labourers employed, that "the reasons for the unusual increase of the number of desertions, convictions of labourers, and cancelment of their contracts may be ascribed to the fact that a considerable number of free coolies struck on one large garden on which they had been living and working and went and executed local contracts with another employer, but afterwards they changed their mind and left the garden of the latter; according to him they were enticed away from him by their former master." The work of inspection was very inefficiently performed, and under the circumstances the statements in the report as to the good treatment of labourers must be taken as founded rather on the general knowledge of the Magistrate than on any special experience gained during the year. The Lieutenant-Governor has no doubt that in Chittagong the small and diminishing minority of coolies bound by contracts under the Act are treated exactly as the free labourers with whom they work.

2. The report is of interest as being the last of its kind which will be submitted for a complete year in this Province, the system of statutory contracts having been abolished in Chittagong by order of Government, with effect from the first day of the current month. The present report affords further evidence that such an exceptional system is not necessary in that district, where the conditions of labour are not different from those prevailing in other parts of Bengal. The penal contracts, provided originally to meet the case of the importation of workmen from a distance at the cost of employers, appear to have been used of late to bind local labourers, occasionally obtained from a neighbouring garden, with a strictness altogether unnecessary, one result being that a considerable proportion of them (this year more than 5 per cent.) were sent to jail for offences unknown to the ordinary law. That no great advantage accrued to the employer from the system is suggested by the fact that 14 per cent. of the labourers under statutory contract deserted during the year.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

P. NOLAN,

Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE MONTH OF MARCH 1889.

THE transition from the cold-weather conditions to those of the hot season in Bengal which usually commences at the close of February, becomes complete in March. The normal features of the meteorology of March are therefore rapidly increasing temperature, gradually decreasing pressure, a general increase in the air motion, winds becoming westerly at the inland stations and south-westerly at the southern stations, while the northerly component in the wind directions almost disappears except in Behar; the air is also generally very dry, skies are clear, and there is an almost complete absence of rain, unless the normal weather conditions are disturbed by the occurrence of the local storms known as nor'-westers. These storms are believed to be brought about by the interaction of the more or less opposing wind systems which obtain to a certain extent over Bengal in this month, for at the western stations, winds are strongly westerly, at the southern stations strong moist southerly winds usually blow, while easterly winds continue to blow down the Assam Valley, and sometimes penetrate as far as Purneah and Durbhunga. From the nature of the formation of these nor'-westers and their local character, the rainfall brought by them, which is sometimes decidedly heavy, is very irregularly distributed. Occasionally also the normal conditions in March are disturbed by the formation of depressions over Northern India, which extend and travel in a south-easterly direction, and give unsettled weather and perhaps rain to Behar, Chutia Nagpur, and North Bengal, but these barometric depressions are usually less numerous and less influential in character than they are in the previous cold-weather months.

By these irregular actions a moderate amount of rain is brought to Bengal during March. The normal rainfall is heaviest in East Bengal, where it averages about 2·8 inches. In South-West Bengal, North Bengal, and Orissa the fall ranges from about one to one and a half inches; in Chutia Nagpur it is rather less than an inch; while in Behar it is rather less than half an inch.

Meteorology of the month.—The chief features in the meteorology of March 1889 have been—

1. The mean pressure over the province of Bengal has been decidedly in excess of the normal, the excess averaging about 0·046 inch. This excess, though fairly equally distributed, has been generally largest at the western stations, where at Cuttack, Gya, and Hazaribagh it equals about 0·06 inch; while it has been comparatively small in South-East and South Bengal, where it equals about 0·04 inch. In Assam the mean excess pressure has been 0·045 inch, and here the excess is almost equal at all stations.

2. The average temperature of the whole province of Bengal has been 1·6° in excess of the normal, the largest excess temperatures being confined to the districts of Chutia Nagpur and South Behar. In Assam an average excess temperature of 2·2° was registered.

3. Humidity has been decidedly in excess of the normal in all districts, the excess being large in the south-western districts, where it has varied from about 12 to 15 per cent.

4. Cloud proportion has been decidedly larger than usual in Orissa and South-West and East Bengal, but it has been below it in Behar and Chutia Nagpur.

5. A slight disturbance or area of comparative barometric depression was formed at the commencement of the month over Chutia Nagpur and the adjacent districts of the Central Provinces and North-West Provinces. This was the continuation of a shallow depression which had stretched from Upper Sind into the Central Provinces. The depression moved in an easterly direction and gave a series of thunderstorms with general rain in South-West and East Bengal, South Behar, and Chutia Nagpur on the first two or three days of the month, while a few showers fell in North Behar and North Bengal. Slightly disturbed conditions with rain again obtained in the hills and at the stations near them from the 13th to the 20th, and on the 21st and 22nd disturbed conditions existed in Orissa, South-West and East Bengal; but with the exception of these brief periods of disturbance, weather has been fine almost throughout the month. There has therefore been a comparative absence of storms of the two classes mentioned under the normal meteorology of the month.

6. Rainfall for the month has been consequently in decided defect in all districts. The fall in North Bengal has equalled about a tenth of the usual amount; in Orissa, East Bengal, and North Behar it has been about a fifth to a quarter of the usual quantity; in South-West Bengal about one-third; in Chutia Nagpur about one-half; while the largest comparative fall has occurred in South Behar, where it equals about three-fourths of the normal amount. For the whole province of Bengal the average fall is rather less than a third of the normal. In Assam heavy falls have occurred at Sibsagar and Silchar, but very little rain has fallen at Dhubri.

There are, therefore, no particular features in the meteorology of the month which require discussion. Slightly disturbed weather with a number of local storms prevailed in all except the northern districts of the province during the first two or three days. This was followed by period of about a fortnight, during which the hot-weather conditions steadily established themselves, though a few local storms of little or no importance were reported during this interval. Weather then became more disturbed by the passage of a shallow low-pressure area from Central India over North Bengal, and probably also over the hills; and from about the 16th to the 20th local storms were numerous over the north of the province. On the latter date a brisk fall of pressure caused a feeble depression to appear over North Behar and Bengal, and this was followed by the occurrence of a series of thunderstorms with rain. On the 20th the storms commenced in Chutia Nagpur; during the 24 hours following, storms were reported from the stations along the western portion of South-West Bengal, South Bengal, and Chittagong. Some of these storms were decidedly severe. Thus a rather severe storm occurred about 7-30 p. m. on the 20th at Hazaribagh; at 10-30 p. m. of the same day a severe storm was reported at Ranigange. A rather large storm passed to the west of Calcutta, moving in a south-easterly direction, at 8 a. m. of the 21st, while beween ten and eleven on the same day Saugor Island was visited by a rather severe storm accompanied by a strong westerly gale, during which wind velocity averaged 44 miles an hour, but which rapidly passed away. It is of course impossible to state with certainty that this was a single storm, but judging by the times at which these stations were visited by storms, it is quite possible that this was a single storm travelling roughly in a south-easterly direction, in which case the velocity of the movement of the body of the storm itself would have been about sixteen miles an hour. These slightly disturbed conditions continued up to about the 23rd, when ordinary hot-weather conditions again set in and continued up to the 27th, when, owing to large barometric changes, a rather deep barometric depression was formed in North Bengal. This was probably only a part of a larger disturbance or stormy weather in Sikkim and the Bhutan Himalayas, and on this day a gale of wind was reported from Darjeeling, but little or no rain accompanied the disturbed conditions at any of the reporting stations. The disturbed conditions, however, which were brought about by this stormy weather, gave rather heavily-clouded skies to many of the stations in the plains for several days, and even up to the close of the month the effects of the disturbance had not entirely disappeared.

Pressure.—The principal abnormal changes in the pressure distribution during the month have already been referred to under the description of the general meteorology. For the whole province the mean pressure has been almost steadily in excess of the normal, the average excess being 0·046 inch. The excess was largest in the first week of March, when it averaged about 0·1 inch to 0·14 inch.

Temperature.—At the commencement of the month temperature was generally somewhat in defect of the normal, the average for the first week showing a mean defect of about 0·6°. During the second week there was an increase in the mean temperature of the province of no less than 4° and temperature thus became decidedly in excess of the normal. A further very rapid increase took place in the third week, and for this period temperature was in excess of the normal by between 3° and 4°, while in Behar the excess was nearly 5°. The excess then commenced to decrease. For the whole month the average mean temperature of the province has been 1·6° in excess of the normal. In Assam the general temperature has been 2 2° in excess of the normal.

The following table will show the principal variations of temperature from the normal, week by week, during the entire month:—

Rainfall.—As stated previously, in no large district has the rainfall of the month been heavy. Average falls of about half an inch have been received in East and South-West Bengal and Chutia Nagpur; of about a third of an inch in South Behar; and of a fifth of an inch in Orissa; while the smallest falls have occurred in North Bengal and North Behar, where they have averaged only a tenth of an inch. Compared with the normals for the period, the actual falls expressed as a percentage become:—South Behar 73, Chutia Nagpore 47, South-West Bengal 35, North Behar 23, East Bengal 20, Orissa 19, and North Bengal 10.

The heaviest falls have occurred in the Noakhally district, which averages 3·29 inches, while in the Darjeeling Hills district an average of 2 62 inches has been received. In all other districts the falls have been much smaller, and average amounts of between half and one inch are reported in the 24-Pergunnahs, Howrah, Hooghly, Bankoorah, Burdwan, Beerbhoom, Nuddea, Jessore, Khoolna, Chittagong, Backergunge, Shahabad, Lohardugga, and Manbhoom districts. The remaining districts have received falls of less than half an inch, and in the following districts the falls are less than a tenth of an inch:—Pooree, Cuttack, Midnapur, Dacca, Mymensingh, Bogra, Pubna, Rajshahye, Maldah, Dinagepur, Purneah, Mozufferpur, Durbhanga, Chumparun, Monghyr, and Bhagulpur.

The results of observations at the Alipore Observatory are not rigorously comparable with the registers of past years (at the Park-street Observatory). The barometer is about 3 feet higher at Alipore, and, other things being equal, reads therefore ·003 lower. The diurnal range of temperature is also greater at Alipore, and the mean temperature apparently about 1·0° lower; and finally, the thermometer which furnished the record of temperature at the Surveyor-General's Office during 20 years and upwards is found to read 0·6 higher than the Kew standard thermometer, which is the standard of reference at the present Observatory.

* Mean of six days. † Mean of five days.

Explanation.—Summary.—The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical average or means of the reading during the same period for the last ten years. The humidity of the atmosphere is expressed at percentage, saturated air being presented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 10. The numbers are the numerical means or average of the rainfall in that district determined from the returns sent in by the sub-divisional station for the period in question during the past stations in the district sending in returns divided by the number of stations. A rainy day is one on which at least hundredth of an inch fell.

for the week ending Friday, the 5th of April 1889.

CALCUTTA, the 9th April 1889.

SUMMARY OF THE RAINFALL AND METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 5TH APRIL 1889.

AT the close of the previous week weather conditions were fairly normal, except for the fact that there was a shallow depression overlying North Bengal and Behar which, however, was showing decided signs of filling up and of moving in an easterly direction. On the 30th, or the first day of the present week, pressure fell rather rapidly in the centre and east of the province, and though pressure was relatively low over part of Bengal, the depression had practically disappeared and conditions became fairly normal. On the 31st pressure was rising, and this increase continued over the greater part of the province up to and including the 2nd; but by the morning of the 3rd the pressure commenced again to fall, showing that the highest point of the oscillation had been reached. The fall continued on the 4th, but on the 5th an increase again generally set in. This slow oscillation of pressure is characteristic of fine settled weather; and for the greater part of the week and over the greater part of the province weather has been fine, though in East Bengal at the commencement of the week a few local storms occurred. These local storms were perhaps in some way connected with the slightly disturbed conditions which had previously existed, and which at the commencement of the week were drifting in an easterly direction and filling up in their advance. Both East Bengal and later on Assam thus experienced a few local storms and received some showers, but for the week the greater part of Bengal has been almost absolutely rainless.

Pressure.—The variations of pressure have already been referred to, and for the week the mean pressure of the province has been about 0·02 inch in excess of the normal. This excess pressure has also been fairly equally distributed in the various districts.

Temperature—Has been subject to moderate fluctuations only. Compared with the normal, the mean temperature of the province has been only 1° in excess. In East Bengal, however, a larger excess of 2·2° is registered; while, on the other hand, the temperatures in North and South-West Bengal have been nearly normal. Most districts have reported decidedly high maximum temperatures, and in all except Chutia Nagpur, some stations have recorded temperatures in excess of 100°.

The following table will show the general temperature during the week. It contains the average maximum, minimum, and mean temperatures for the week at nine typical stations in different districts of the province and their variation from the normal :—

Rainfall—During the week has been quite unimportant, and has been entirely confined to East Bengal; but even here the average fall only equals 0·17 inch. The district of Noakhally has received the largest fall, which here equals 0·61 inch. In the districts of Mymensingh and Backergunge average falls of nearly a quarter of an inch have been registered.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven Meterological divisions of the Province for the week ending Friday, the 5th April 1889 :—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

MEMORANDUM.

THE annexed table, exhibiting the vital statistics of the principal Municipalities in Bengal for the week ending 23rd March 1889, furnishes the following results :—

1 Births and deaths were recorded in these Municipalities at the rates, respectively, of 21·9 and 24·5 per 1,000 of population, as opposed to 22·5 and 24·1 per 1,000 in the preceding week ending 16th March

2. These events were registered at the highest rates in the undermentioned Municipalities :—

Births.	Ratio per mille.	Deaths.	Ratio per mille.
Rampore Beauleah	60·4	Purneah	131·6
Comillah	53·9	Puri	71·3

Serampore	35·3
Burdwan	32·0
Moughyr	30·7

3. The following table shows that, as compared with the results of the preceding week, there was an increase of mortality from cholera, but fractional differences in the number of deaths reported from the other diseases, vide figures given below :—

	Ratio per mille during the weeks ending—

4. Of the diseases specified above, cholera, fever, and the maladies coming under the head of "Other causes" proved conspicuously fatal only in the following Municipalities, and bowel-complaints only in the Serampore town, where the death-rate from this cause stood at 11·8 per 1,000 of population : —

Cholera.	Ratio per mille.	Fever.	Ratio per mille.	Other causes.	Ratio per mille.

General remarks on the fluctuation of principal staples carried over the East Indian Railway during four weeks ended 23rd February 1889.

INCREASES.

Coal and coke.—There was an increase in both the upwards and downwards traffic, the former was due to requirements by Foreign railways, and the latter to demand in Calcutta for shipment to out-ports and for local consumption.

Cotton.—The increase was principally in despatches from stations above Cawnpore to Howrah and Bombay.

Government stores.—This was chiefly in despatches from Howrah, Chunar and vid Ghaziabad.

Lac.—Due to considerable despatches of lac-stick principally from vid Ghaziabad and vid Jubbulpore to Mirzapore.

Wheat.—The increase was chiefly in traffic from vid Digha Ghât and Moghalsarai to Howrah for shipment.

Stone.—This is in continuation of the increase reported for the last few months.

DECREASES.

Ghee.—There was an increase in weight carried, attended with a decrease in freight earned, due principally to diversion to the Indian Midland Railway route of despatches from Manhor to Bombay, and to a falling off in despatches from other stations on D district to Calcutta.

Piece-goods, European.—The decrease under this head was due to despatches from Howrah and vid Jubbulpore owing to large trade centres in the North-Western Provinces having been overstocked by heavy despatches in December last.

Fruits, other kinds.—Due to poor traffic in betel-nuts.

Rice (husked and unhusked).—The decrease was chiefly in despatches from loop line stations, and was due to absence of demand both in Calcutta and up-country stations.

Gram and pulses.—

Other rain and spring crops.—The decreases under these heads were due to same cause as reported last month, viz., the demand at stations up-country owing to scarcity in 1888, did not exist in 1889.

Hides.—The decrease was principally in despatches from Cawnpore and Delhi, and was apparently due to up-country dealers holding out for better prices.

Oil.—This was almost entirely in despatches of kerosine oil from Howrah, and was due to heavy despatches during the corresponding month of last year.

Opium.—Due to Government arrangements for despatch.

Railway material, Foreign.—This decrease was chiefly in despatches from Calcutta, due to the completion of the Indian Midland Railway.

Salt.—Chiefly in despatches from Howrah owing to heavy speculation in 1888, consequent on the anticipated introduction of an additional import duty.

Seeds.—The decrease was chiefly in linseed and mustard seed; the former decrease was due to exceptional traffic in February 1888 and the absence of demand this year, and the latter was due to the Calcutta market being dull throughout the month.

Spices.—The falling off was principally in despatches of chillies from Mokameh and Mokameh Ghât.

Sugar and Jaggree.—Partly due to diversion of traffic to the Indian Midland Railway from Cawnpore and at other stations to absence of demand.

It will be his duty to demarcate all village common land, whether forest, pasture, roads or other land, distinguishing it from waste, as not liable to cultivation.

Estimate No. of 1889-90.

Estimate framed by F. Sills, Esq., C.E., Executive Engineer, Chittagong Division, of the probable cost of delivering 10½ lakhs of table-moulded building bricks.

Dated Chittagong, the 5th April 1889.

Superintending Engineer, Eastern Circle's No. 1654 of 25th March 1888.

REPORT.

* 500,000 No. 1, 1st class table-moulded bricks.
200,000 ,, 1, 2nd ditto.
100,000 ,, 1, 2nd ditto, whole jhama.
150,000 brick bats.
100,000 jhama ,,

This estimate provides for manufacture and delivery of 10½ lakhs* of table-moulded and building bricks delivered adjoining the tank at Fenny sub-division in the district of Noakhally, or on Government land, as may be required.

It is proposed to give out the work on contract. The contractor is to make his own arrangement for land and for tools and plant and importation of coal, &c., except in so far as the Executive Engineer is in a position to supply these.

The contractor will be allowed the use of whatever tools and plant there are in the division that can conveniently be spared; the contractor being responsible that they are returned in the same condition, allowing for fair wear and tear. A list of tools and plant available can be inspected at the Executive Engineer's Office at Chittagong.

The contractors must make their own arrangement for land, or Government land for a brick-field at Fenny will be given over to the contractors if desired, they paying a Royalty of Rs. 10 per lakh of bricks clamped if they use the field or any portion of it.

Samples of the different classes of bricks and brick material for concrete can be inspected at the Executive Engineer's Office at Chittagong.

F. SILLS, C.E., Executive Engineer, Chittagong Division.

SPECIFICATION FOR DIFFERENT CLASSES OF TABLE-MOULDED AND PUGGED CLAY BRICKS, AND BRICK MATERIAL SUITABLE FOR CONCRETE, TO BE MANUFACTURED AT THE FENNY SUB-DIVISION, AND TO BE DELIVERED ADJOINING THE CUTCHERRY TANK OR ON GOVERNMENT LAND AS MAY BE REQUIRED.

Bricks, 1st class—Should be rectangular, true-faced, have no points, sinking on either face, but a hollow on one or both sides. When saturated with water, should not absorb more than 10 per cent. of its own weight of water, should absorb it reluctantly, and part with it freely at an ordinary temperature. They should be uniformly burnt; should be sound, free from cracks, flaws, air-bubbles, stones, and lumps of any kind, but more especially lumps of lime. Should be of a good red color, should have a metallic clang when two bricks are struck together; when broken should show a compact uniform structure, should be tough and pasty in texture and not granular, and should require repeated blows to break them rather than one blow.

They are to be manufactured of well-pugged clay and table-moulded in moulds (measuring 10½″ in length, 5½″, in breadth and 3″ deep, measured to stock plate), so as to turn out a wet brick, measuring 10⅛″, 5⅛″, 3″ and 9¼″, 4¼″ and 2¼″ when burnt.

No inferior, under-burnt, ill-shaped or broken bricks of any kind or shape will be accepted as 1st class.

They are to be given over regularly stacked in stacks containing each 5,000 bricks. The bricks in these stacks must have one end exposed for inspection.

Bricks, 2nd class.—These bricks should be tolerably regular in shape with plane parallel surfaces. They are to be free from cracks and air-bubbles, sound and hard. They are to be manufactured of well-pugged clay and table-moulded in moulds (measuring 10½″ in length, 5½″ in breadth and 3″ deep, measured to stock plate), so as to turn out a wet brick measuring 10⅛″, 5⅛″, 3″ and 9¼″, 4¼″, 2¼″ when burnt. No under-burnt or ill-shaped bricks will be accepted in this class. They are to be given over regularly stacked in stacks containing each 5,000 bricks. The bricks in these stacks must have one end exposed for inspection.

Jhama entire building bricks—These bricks should be semi-vitrified bricks as may reasonably be supposed to be useful for the brick-work in the foundation of buildings. Must be tolerably regular in shape to the extent that they can easily be dressed with the trowel of the mason on his work, and the bond of the brick-work may not be destroyed on account of inequalities on the bricks. The bricks must be hard and sound and be manufactured of well-pugged clay and table-moulded in moulds (measuring 10½″ in length, 5½″ in breadth and 3″ in deep, measured to stock plate), so as to turn out a wet brick measuring 10⅛″×5⅛″×3″ and 9¼″×4¼″×2¼″ when burnt. No lumps of jhama or wholly vitrified bricks will be accepted in this class. They are to be given over regularly stacked in stacks containing each 5,000 bricks. The bricks in these stacks must have one end exposed for inspection.

Jhama for concrete.—In this class will be included all bricks which are thoroughly well burnt of well-pugged clay, but whose shapes are so irregular as to make them useless for ordinary building purposes.

No portion of the jhama bats or lumps must be so light as to float in water immediately after it is thrown in. They are to be given over regularly stacked. Each stack to be 4 feet high and 10 feet broad, and of a suitable length, but not to contain more than 1,000 cubic feet in a stack.

Broken bricks for concrete.—These broken bricks or bats to be of first class bricks only. They may be of irregular shape, but must be free from jhama and dust. They are to be given over regularly stacked; each stack to be 4′ high and 10′ broad, and of a suitable length, but not to contain more than 1,000 cubit feet in a stack.

F. SILLS, C.E. Executive Engineer, Chittagong.

Abstract of the Proceedings of the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Act of Parliament 24 and 25 Vict., cap. 67.

THE Council met at the Council Chamber on Saturday, the 6th April, 1889.

Present:

The HON'BLE SIR STEUART COLVIN BAYLEY, K.C.S.I., C.I.E., Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, presiding.

The HON'BLE SIR CHARLES PAUL, K.C.I.E., Advocate-General of Bengal.

The HON'BLE C. P. L. MACAULAY.

The HON'BLE P. NOLAN.

The HON'BLE T. T. ALLEN.

The HON'BLE SIR HENRY HARRISON, KT.

The HON'BLE SIR ALFRED CROFT, K.C.I.E.

The HON'BLE DR. MAHENDRA LAL SIRCAR, C.I.E.

The HON'BLE C. H. MOORE.

The HON'BLE H. PRATT.

The HON'BLE SHAHZADA MAHOMMED FURROKH SHAH.

The HON'BLE DR. RASH BEHARI GHOSE.

NEW MEMBER.

The Hon'ble MR. NOLAN took his seat in Council.

PRIVATE FISHERIES BILL.

The Hon'ble Sir Charles Paul introduced the Bill "for the protection of the right of fishing in private waters" and moved that it be read in Council. He said:—

"After obtaining leave at the last meeting of the Council to introduce this Bill, it is unnecessary that I should enlarge on the subject, or repeat the reasons which exist for the introduction of the measure. Under the existing law private rights in fisheries are not sufficiently or effectually protected. By the law as it is, any infringement of these private rights is not punishable. These rights are very valuable; large sums of money are paid for, and great profits arise out of, the exercise of these rights. It is therefore necessary to protect these valuable rights, and it was for that purpose that this Bill has been introduced. The Bill, following the lines of English legislation on the same subject, is directed to three principal points: namely, first, to the offence of fishing in private fisheries; second, to the offence of erecting places and constructing appliances for the purpose of catching fish, without the permission of the owner, in private fisheries; and, thirdly, to make trespass upon these lands for the purpose of committing these depredations a criminal offence. The fifth section of this Bill provides that offences committed under this Act shall be considered cognizable offences, so that the police may arrest offenders then and there. I think this Bill will be found sufficient for the purposes which I originally explained, and under these circumstances I move that it be read in Council."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Bill was read accordingly.

The Hon'ble Sir Charles Paul also moved that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Nolan, the Hon'ble Mr. Allen, the Hon'ble Rajah Rameshwar Sing, the Hon'ble Dr. Rash Behari Ghose, and the Mover.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

POLICE SUPERANNUATION FUNDS BILL.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Harrison introduced the Bill "to consolidate the Calcutta and the Suburban Police Superannuation Funds" and moved that it be read in Council. He said:—

"It is unnecessary, as leave was granted at the last meeting of the Council to introduce the Bill, to say more than that there is a point pending whether any guarantee is necessary for the solvency of the funds, but I understand that upon that question the Local Government is still in correspondence with the Supreme Government, so that there is no necessity to say anything more now."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Bill was read accordingly.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Harrison also moved that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Allen, the Hon'ble Dr. Rash Behari Ghose, and the Mover.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

CALCUTTA PORT BILL.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Harrison introduced the Bill "to consolidate and amend the law relating to the Port of Calcutta and to the appointment of Commissioners for the said Port" and moved that it be read in Council.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Bill was read accordingly.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Harrison also moved that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Macaulay, the Hon'ble Mr. Allen, the Hon'ble Mr. Moore, the Hon'ble Mr. Pratt, and the Mover.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

EMIGRANTS' SANITATION BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. NOLAN introduced the Bill "to provide for the sanitation of emigrants during their passage through Bengal to the labour districts in Assam" and moved that it be read in Council.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Bill was read accordingly.

The Hon'ble MR. NOLAN also moved that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Allen, the Hon'ble Mr. Moore, the Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar, the Hon'ble Dr. Rash Behari Ghose, and the Mover, with permission to report thereon within a fortnight. He said:—

"In explanation of the somewhat unusual provision giving the Select Committee power to report within a fortnight, I desire to state that there is no wish to bind the members to do their work more quickly than they may themselves find convenient; but it seems advisable to give them power to report, if they think fit, before the usual period of one month has expired. There is every reason for expediting the consideration of the measure, so far as can be done without precipitancy; for cholera, which, as His Honour the President informed you when asking leave to introduce this Bill, carried off six hundred emigrants last year, has recently, I much regret to state, broken out again. And it is hoped that no protracted period will be required for the examination of a Bill which merely embodies the simple principle that emigration should be subject to sanitary supervision, and that such supervision should be exercised in accordance with rules to be made by Government, and altered from time to time, so that they may always be in accordance with the varying necessities of the hour. This policy has been accepted without question for a quarter of a century: it was applied by this Council in the Acts of 1865 and 1870 to the special case with which we are now dealing, that of emigration to Assam, and by the Governor-General in Council in three well-known enactments to emigration to the Colonies, Burma and the Straits Settlements. That it was not consciously abandoned by the framers of the present law, Act I of 1882, may be inferred with the utmost certainty from the elaborate provisions made in that enactment, and in the rules framed under it, for the sanitary supervision of the only class of emigrants whom it dealt with; as also from the absence of any intimation in the voluminous correspondence and discussions by which the measure was preceded of a desire to dispense with such supervision. They could hardly have wished to enforce strict rules on a minority, while neglecting the greater number, travelling under precisely the same conditions; and had they intended thus to alter an established policy, they would certainly have given some reason for so doing.

"The explanation of the action taken in 1882, which this Bill intends to supplement rather than to alter, is to be found in the last statement, that the conditions are the same. Emigrants passing through Bengal to Assam are divided into two classes—the minority, who have already executed labour contracts under the Act, and the majority, who have not done so as yet: the health of the former is fully protected by law, and rules having the force of law, while for the latter nothing whatever is done. It was anticipated in 1882 that those who had not signed engagements, being as yet free from any legal bond, would be able to take care of themselves, just like other travellers, and if this expectation has not been fulfilled, the result has to some extent been produced by arrangements not contemplated in 1882—in particular by the facilities afforded to employers for putting labourers under contract as they pass through Dhubri, after leaving Bengal. However this may be, it is now matter of daily experience that emigrants of the two classes are obtained and despatched in the same way, being originally recruited in Chota Nagpur and Behar by planters' sirdars, or the contractors' men, or by arkatis, as they are called, working on their own account; being collected in depôts, and there detained until a sufficient number has been got together; being then forwarded in large batches, at their master's expense and under his complete control; and their destination being in both cases to work on tea gardens under statutory contracts. That these contracts are, in regard to one class, executed in Assam at the end of the journey, in regard to the other, here in Bengal, at its commencement, is a matter quite irrelevant when we are dealing with a question of physical health, and one which cannot properly, I submit, be made the ground for a distinction in the sanitary systems adopted for the two classes. A recruit drinking from a tainted well in an unlicensed depôt may imbibe the seed of cholera, although he has never put his mark to a contract; he may develop the fatal germs and spread them among hundreds, although he is called a free emigrant.

"But whatever the requirements of consistency, no change would be proposed in the law if existing arrangements did not work badly in practice. There have been complaints as to the food furnished to emigrants on their journey, the absence of clothing, the abandonment of the sick, and failure to bury the dead; but it is to the state of the depôts that the greatest importance is attached, and it is in these that the greatest improvement may be reasonably expected. The attention of Government was drawn to this point, by those most interested, in a letter which I might be permitted to read:—

'Dated Calcutta, the 22nd August, 1888.

From—G. M. BARTON, Esq., Assistant Secretary, Indian Tea Association,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, General Department.

'I AM directed by the General Committee of this Association to hand you herewith printed copy of a letter, dated the 18th of June, from Surgeon-General A. C. C. De Renzy, C.B., to the Secretary of the Indian Tea Districts Association, London, on the subject of the recent outbreak of cholera among coolies proceeding to Assam.

'It will be noticed that reference is specially made to the state of the depôts and the water-supply at Raniganj, and it is suggested that the Government of Bengal should depute a competent medical officer to report on the state of things at that place and at the halting-places between there and Dhubri, and to advise as to the measures that are required to put them in a good sanitary condition.

'The Committee are aware that the Government is already considering certain suggestions for the sanitary supervision of all coolie traffic to Assam; but they are of opinion that the recommendations of Dr. DeRenzy are worthy of attention, and they therefore beg to bring them to the notice of the Government.'

"The enclosure to the Association's letter begins—

'Dated 18, Clyde Road, Dublin, the 18th June, 1888.

From—SURGEON-GENERAL A. C. C. DERENZY, C.B.,
To—ERNEST TYE, Esq., Secretary, Indian Tea Districts Association.

'CHOLERA has been so fatal this season among the coolies in transit up the Brahmaputra that the Government, I believe, have found it necessary to suspend coolie emigration altogether. As this step must inflict immense injury on the tea interest in Assam, I venture to suggest that the Indian Tea Districts Association should take the opportunity of pressing on the Bengal Government the necessity of measures for preventing a repetition of such a disaster. It ought surely to be fully understood that cholera is the most preventible of all epidemic diseases; and when epidemics, such as have lately prevailed among the coolies occur, it may be assumed with absolute certainty that they are due to gross sanitary neglect somewhere.'

"I may quote another passage from Dr. De Renzy's letter as to the Raniganj depôts:—

'A gentleman who has recently been there describes the state of things as follows. He says:—'It would be a miracle if cholera were not bred at that place. The coolies recruited in the Chota Nagpur districts are collected there in depôts before being despatched by railway. The depôts are under no supervision whatever. Depôts that have space for 100 have frequently 900 crammed into them. The water-supply is from three wells, but is mainly drawn from tanks, which are foul in the extreme. The coolies defœcate anywhere and everywhere a yard from the depôts, and on the margins of the tanks. In fact, it is the Calcutta depôt system of 25 years ago.'

"Previous to the receipt of this communication the Lieutenant-Governor had, through the Commissioner of Police, Calcutta, secured the inspection of the free depôts in this town, with the result that three out of seven were found to be in an unsatisfactory state. The entries in a statement before me as to these three depôts are:—

'The sanitary arrangements of the building are bad, the compound and nearly all parts of the building are in a filthy state, the floors of the rooms are undermined by rats: altogether the place is quite unfit for a coolie depôt.

'This place is also in a very bad state: the supply of water for bathing and other purposes is insufficient, and the building is too small for the number of persons accommodated.

'The building is a pucca two-storied one; the compound is not well kept, and the drain round the building is filthy. The accommodation is insufficient.'

"At the request of the Tea Association, Dr. Gregg, the Officiating Sanitary Commissioner, was deputed to inspect the mofussil depôts. He reported that two out of three free depôts visited by him in Chota Nagpur derived their water-supply from wells, the mouths of which were below the surface level, and which were therefore liable to receive the surface drainage. 'On the whole,' he writes, 'the present free depôts are of the most unsatisfactory kind, and should, I think, be placed as soon as possible under proper management and supervision.' As to Raniganj, he observes:—

'There is no doubt that the sanitary arrangements of the coolie depôts at Raniganj are very defective: the water used in them is drawn in many cases from tanks that are not over-clean; the cooking of the food is not properly attended to; and, in fact, there is an absence of that controlling supervision which has been found to be so necessary in respect of the coolie depôts situated in the Suburbs of Calcutta, in connection with Inland and Colonial Emigration. The depôts belonging to known persons number from 20 to 25, and there are many private depôts besides, in which the so-called free emigrants are accommodated until disposed of by persons whose livelihood depends upon such transactions, and with whom at present there cannot legally be any interference. I also admit that there was a foundation for complaints made by these managers in their turn, that their coolies were not sufficiently provided for on the lines of railway, and I take the opportunity of stating that the Railway authorities and Superintendent of Inland Emigration have recently made arrangements to limit the number of emigrants to be carried daily, so as to prevent overcrowding, to provide suitable carriages, good drinking water, to help the travellers at places suitable for refreshment or repose, and to secure adequate medical inspection and treatment.'

"I hope that in reading these extracts, which I think it my duty to place before the Council, I have not conveyed the impression that there is any very gross or scandalous neglect at these depôts. Dr. Comins, the Superintendent of Inland Emigration, who has just completed an inspection more detailed than had been previously made, informs me that he was rather surprised to find that they were no worse; that since attention has been prominently directed to the subject there has been some improvement; and that the managers seem disposed to act on his advice, though he has at present no legal position in regard to them. He did not, however, find that when care was taken in sanitary matters, it was always exercised according to knowledge; for instance, in one case where a brick drain was made at some expense from a latrine, it was given its outlet in a tank, the water of which is used for drinking purposes by the emigrants. I have also to acknowledge that there was much truth in counter-complaints made by the coolie contractors that the arrangements on railways, over which they had no control, were deficient. This is a matter to which the Lieutenant-Governor has recently given much attention with the result that steps have been taken to prevent overcrowding, to secure the use of suitable carriages, to establish medical inspection on the route, and afford medical assistance, as also to provide for necessary halts, for food and repose. It is well known that coolies when first taken away from their homes are, for reasons easily understood, peculiarly liable to cholera, and, therefore, need special care to guard them against infection, the results of which cannot be prevented by any subsequent treatment. And it is also obvious that as coolies from different depôts are brought together in the train, at Dhubri, and on the Assam steamers, any outbreak of cholera among one batch is likely to spread widely, so that the most careful master may suffer for the neglect of his neighbour. For instance, the depôts for coolies recruited according to the Act are, by all accounts, kept in excellent order under Government supervision, but their inmates can have no exemption from cholera on the journey if they are massed with men coming from an infected depôt. It is the case of the chain-cable no stronger than its weakest part; to provide for the safety of the ship we have to test every link. Such being the circumstances, I hope that this Council, and those interested in the great tea industry, as also the public generally, may accept a Bill which, though it does not purport to deal with the whole question of the supply of labour to Assam, is, I submit, sufficient for its purpose, and can hardly fail to effect an immediate and appreciable improvement in the sanitary condition of the places where cholera is too often generated."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

MOHAMMEDAN BURIAL BOARD'S BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR HENRY HARRISON introduced the Bill "to provide for the appointment of a Mohammedan Burial Board in Calcutta" and moved that it be read in Council.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Bill was read accordingly.

The Hon'ble SIR HENRY HARRISON also moved that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Sir Alfred Croft, the Hon'ble Mr. Allen, the Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar, the Hon'ble Shahzada Mahommed Furrokh Shah, and the Mover. He said:—

"With your Honour's permission, I should like to add that permission to report thereon be given within a fortnight. With reference to the explanation which has fallen from the hon'ble member opposite, I think it would be advisable if leave were given to this Committee also to report in a fortnight if it sees its way to do so. Although the rules which may be framed under the Bill may require a great deal of care and consideration, the Bill itself is of a somewhat simple character, and I think it quite possible for the Select Committee to report within a fortnight; and as it has been represented that the appointment of the Board is urgently required within the present year, it seems desirable to pass the Act as soon as possible."

The Hon'ble the PRESIDENT—"If no one objects, I shall give the permission."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Saturday, the 20th April, 1889.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

Explanation.—Summary.—The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical average or means of the reading during the same period for the last ten yea
The humidity of the atmosphere is expressed at percentage, saturated air being presented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 10. The numb are the numerical means or average of the rainfall in that district determined from the returns sent in by the sub-divisional station for the period in question during the past stations in the district sending in returns divided by the number of stations. A rainy day is one on which at least hundredth of an inch fell.

Calcutta, the 16th April 1889.

SUMMARY OF THE RAINFALL AND METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 12TH APRIL 1889.

THE week began with fine weather everywhere, temperature was high, and pressure above the normal. Pressure had been rising, but on the first day of the week a fall set in, at first slowly in the north-west districts, but afterwards more rapidly all over the province. Gradients became steep at the head of the Bay, and strong southerly winds began to blow at the coast stations. On Sunday pressure was considerably below the normal everywhere, but weather continued generally fine, and a few showers fell in the hill districts only. On Monday a few light local showers fell in North Bengal, and though pressure continued to fall, the first signs of an increase were shown in the extreme west of Behar. This rise was general on the following day; the strong current which had been blowing on the coast was consequently checked, and storms began in Chutia Nagpur, South-West and East Bengal. The amount of rain was generally small, and rarely exceeded half an inch. On Wednesday and Thursday, the two following days, these storms continued, and were most general on the latter, following one another after a few hours' interval. While the weather was stormy in these districts, very little rain fell in North Bengal, and it was almost entirely absent from Behar. Temperature fell rapidly during these days, and the mean was, in some cases, largely in defect; but the variations from the mean were necessarily irregular. On Friday there was a general fall of pressure, scarcely any rain fell, and weather generally improved.

Pressure.—At the beginning of the week pressure was in excess, but the fall which then commenced quickly reduced the excess, and on Sunday a defect everywhere existed, amounting in some cases to ·05″. The fall continued for the first three days of the week On Tuesday a rise set in and lasted till Thursday, after which pressure again fell. There was defective pressure only on Sunday and Monday. The mean pressure for the whole week has been everywhere in excess, the largest variation being in Behar and amounting to ·08″. With the exception of the fall on Sunday, and a somewhat rapid rise at a few stations on Tuesday and Wednesday, pressure changes have been generally small.

Temperature.—Temperature was generally high in the early part of the week, but with the commencement of stormy weather large local falls began. On Tuesday and Wednesday several stations reported falls exceeding 7°. At Balasore, on Wednesday, there was a fall of over 10°. Temperature for the week has been in excess in all districts, the largest having been in Behar and North Bengal. The excess for Behar has been a little over 3°; in East Bengal and North Bengal very nearly 3°; in Chutia Nagpur 1·7°; in Orissa 0·6°; and in South-West Bengal 0·9°.

The accompanying table shows the average maximum, minimum and mean temperatures for the week at nine typical stations in the province, as compared with the normal values for the same period:—

Rainfall.—A few showers fell in North Bengal on Sunday, and thunderstorms with rain were general in Chutia Nagpur and South-West and East Bengal during Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. In some cases fairly heavy falls occurred, the largest being 1·5″ at Balasore on Wednesday. Very little rain fell in Behar, North Bengal, and Orissa. In North Behar rain was entirely absent. South-West Bengal and Chutia Nagpur received an average amount of about two-thirds of an inch of rain, which is considerably in excess of the normal; in all other districts the amounts are in defect.

PRELIMINARY NOTIFICATION.

The 18th April, 1889.—It is hereby notified for general information that the Lieutenant-Governor intends, if no valid objections be raised within one month from this date, to approve the following notification and rules with regard to the collection of drift timber in the Kusi river, in the districts of Bhagulpore and Purneah :—

Notification.

The Lieutenant-Governor is pleased to direct, under section 45 of the Indian Forest Act (VII of 1878), that the river Kusi and its channels within the districts of Bhagulpore and Purneah are areas within which all unmarked wood and timber, and all wood and timber on which the marks have been obliterated or defaced by fire or otherwise, are deemed to be the property of Government, unless or until any person establishes his right and title thereto under the provisions of the said Act and the rules made under it.

RULES.

Drift Timber Rules for the River Kusi and its channels within the districts of Bhagulpore and Purneah made under section 51 of the Indian Forest Act.

PAYMENT OF RENT BY MEANS OF POSTAL MONEY-ORDERS.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT—LAND REVENUE.

Calcutta, the 22nd April, 1889.

RESOLUTION.

READ again—

The Report, dated the 27th October 1885, of the Committee appointed to consider and advise on the Rules under the Bengal Tenancy Act.

Read—

Resolution of this Government dated the 20th March 1888.

Letter from this Government to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces, No. 3461—1207L.R., dated the 19th November 1887.

Petition, dated the 6th February 1888, from Prasanna Kumar Ghosal and other ryots of Uttarbarh-Jhaimpardah in the district of Howrah.

Letter from the Board of Revenue, No. 993A, dated the 29th October 1888, with enclosures.

Letter from the Board of Revenue, No. 217A, dated the 9th March 1889, with enclosures.

The Committee appointed in 1885 to draft rules under the Bengal Tenancy Act recommended that the question of permitting rent to be paid by means of postal money-orders, under the provisions of section 54 (2), should stand over pending a trial of the plan of paying Government revenue through that agency. The experiment of receiving the land revenue through the Post Office has since been made, and as it has proved an admitted success, the Board of Revenue now propose the extension of the system to the payment of rent. The concession has, moreover, been asked for in a petition by the ryots of Uttarbarh-Jhampardah in the district of Howrah, and the proposal derives some support from the fact that it has already been adopted in the North-Western Provinces, where the circumstances are not very dissimilar. It appears to the Lieutenant-Governor that when landlords and tenants are on friendly terms the use of postal money-orders for the remission of rent will frequently be convenient as the readiest means of transmitting small sums; and that where differences exist, it will serve in some degree as a substitute for the more expensive and troublesome method of depositing rent in the Civil Court under section 61 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. His Honour accordingly considers it desirable to grant the desired permission experimentally in the Burdwan Division with effect from the 1st July, 1889, its continuance and further extension being dependent upon a report to be submitted after the expiry of six months from that date. The subjoined draft of the rules which it is proposed to issue with this object is published, under section 190 (3) of the Act, for general information and criticism, and it is hereby notified that objections will be received during one month from the date of the first publication of this Resolution in the Calcutta Gazette. The rules prepared by the Postal Department in this connection are also published as an annexure for general information.

ORDER.—Ordered that this Resolution, with its annexures, be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

P. NOLAN,
Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

POSTAL RULES RELATING TO RENT MONEY-ORDERS.

THESE rules are divided into five sections—

Section I.—Form of Rent money-order.
Section II.—Issue of Rent money-orders.
Section III.—Payment of Rent money-orders.
Section IV.—Disposal of Rent money-orders not accepted by the payee (zemindar).
Section V.—Disposal of Rent money-order acknowledgments.

SECTION I.

The form of Rent money-order.

1. The rent money-order form is divided into four parts, viz.—

(a) The money-order.
(b) The receipt. This is printed below the money-order, and will be retained by the Postal Department.
(c) The coupon. This is the counterfoil or landlord's portion of the receipt.
(d) The acknowledgment. This is the tenant's receipt.

2. Parts (a) and (b) require no description, as they are exactly like the corresponding portions of the ordinary inland money-order form. Part (c) is double the size of the coupon of an ordinary money-order form. On one side of this part are printed headings to provide for the entry of full particulars of the remittance, and on the other side are special instructions relating to rent money-orders. Part (d) is also double the size of the acknowledgment of an ordinary money-order, and contains the same headings as part (c).

3. This form is to be used for rent money-orders only, and for no other purpose.

4. Forms of rent money-order should be freely distributed among the rent-paying classes, and every facility should be given to tenants to obtain these forms.

5. Every postmaster, sub-postmaster and branch postmaster will be personally responsible that a sufficient supply of rent money-order forms is always available in his office. In case of emergency, supplies may be obtained by telegraph direct from the Stock Depôt. Divisional Superintendents and Inspectors, when visiting offices, will see that a sufficient supply of rent money-order forms is available, and mention the fact in their inspection reports.

SECTION II.

Issue of Rent money-orders.

6. Rent money-orders are issued from every head, sub and branch post-office under the rules which govern the issue of ordinary inland money-orders. The following rules contain additional instructions which relate specially to the issue of rent money-orders.

7. The rule prohibiting the inclusion of pies (fractions of an anna) in the amount of an ordinary money-order does not apply to rent money-orders, which may contain any fractions of an anna not less than one pie.

8. There must be a separate money-order for each tenure or holding. Rent for two tenures or holdings may not be sent by one money-order.

9. The office of issue, when requested to do so, will help the remitter to make the requisite entries, and, if necessary, will make entries for him in the form of rent money-order; but no fee or any gratification for this service may be demanded or accepted, either directly or indirectly, by any official of the Postal Department.

10. Persons remitting money by rent money-orders should be informed that unless they have received special instructions from the landlord on the subject, they should make the orders payable to the landlord, or to his agent, or to the manager (if one has been appointed), according as the rent has previously been paid to the landlord, or to his agent, or to a manager. The name of the payee must in each case be entered on the money-order. In the absence of special instructions from the landlord, a rent money-order should always be made payable at the place at which the tenant has previously paid rent. If the rent has previously been collected in the tenant's village by an agent whose office is not in the village, the money-order should be made payable at the agent's permanent office, or at such other place as the landlord may appoint.

11. The office of issue is responsible that no rent money-order is issued of which the coupon and acknowledgment are blank, or are not completely filled up. The post-office has no means of ascertaining the correctness of the information supplied by the remitter; all that is necessary is that the postmaster or money order clerk should see that entries are made against every heading in the coupon and acknowledgment. No rent money-order may be accepted for issue in which there is any erasure or correction in the name or month or year of the kist for which a remittance is made. If the remitter wishes to make any alteration, or tenders a money-order in which there is any alteration or erasure in the entry of the name or month or year of the kist, he must be instructed to fill up a fresh money-order.

12. The word "rent" should be written before the number of every rent money-order, and this mode of distinguishing rent money-orders should be adopted wherever the number is entered. The number assigned to a rent money-order by the head office or sub-office of issue will also be entered at the top of the coupon and acknowledgment by the money-order clerk of the head office, or the sub-postmaster of the sub-office of issue, as the case may be.

13. One line of the return of rent money-orders issued (Form 2—Rent) should be filled in by every head and subordinate office at the close of each day. On the 1st of the following month the return should be totalled and sent to the disbursing postmaster. The disbursing postmaster will compile a general return (Form 3—Rent) and submit it to the Postmaster-General not later than the 10th of the month following that to which it relates. Branch offices will not submit any returns, as rent money-orders issued from such offices will be included in the returns of their account offices.

SECTION III.

Payment of Rent money-orders.

14. Before a rent money-order is made over to the postman for payment, the money-order clerk or postmaster of the office of payment will carefully examine the name or month and the year of the kist entered in the coupon and acknowledgment, and satisfy himself that they have been clearly entered and bear no marks of erasure or correction.

15. If the examination prescribed in rule 14 shows any discrepancy or alteration in the entries of the kists in the coupon and the acknowledgment, the money-order must not be paid to the payee, but should be returned to the office of issue for repayment to the remitter with the following certificate endorsed in red ink by the postmaster of the office of payment across the acknowledgment :—"Entry of kist defective : returned for payment to remitter—(signature) postmaster." The office of payment will at the same time note the error in the error-book, and send a copy of the entry to the Superintendent, in whose jurisdiction the office of issue is situated, in order that the official in fault may be punished.

16. On receipt of the copy of the entry in the error-book, the Superintendent will take such action as appears to him suitable, having regard to the special instructions to offices of issue in rule 11 of these rules.

17. A rent money-order should always be paid at the landlord's office at the place of payment entered in the money-order. If the money-order is drawn out as payable to the landlord himself, payment may be made to him or to any person authorized by him in writing to act as his agent, or to receive payment of money-orders in his favour. If the money-order is drawn out as payable to two or more joint landlords, the receipt and acknowledgment must be signed by both or all of the landlords, or by an agent authorized in writing by both or all of the landlords. If the money-order is drawn out as payable to an agent or manager, payment may only be made to the payee named, and not to any one else. In making over money to postmen for payment of rent money-orders, the postmaster of the office of payment must observe the limit fixed for the amount to be entrusted at one time to a single postman or village postman. The date stamp of the office of payment should be impressed on the acknowledgments just before the money-orders are given to the postmaster for payment.

18. In all other respects rent money-orders will be dealt with in the office of payment exactly like ordinary inland money-orders.

19. One line of the return of rent money-orders paid and refused (Form 4—Rent) should be filled in by every head and subordinate office at the close of each day. On the 1st of the following month the return should be totalled and sent to the disbursing postmaster. The disbursing postmaster will compile a general return (Form 5—Rent) and submit it to the Postmaster-General not later than the 10th of the month following that to which it relates. Branch offices will not submit any returns. The rent money-orders paid by Branch offices will be included in the returns of their account offices.

SECTION IV.

Disposal of Rent money-orders not accepted by the payee.
